CONVENTION ENDS IN TUMULT

Candidates Walk Arm in Arm Down Stage and Felicitate Each Other. Resolutions Committee After Long Hours of Labor Drafts Acceptable Platform—Favors Downward Revision of Tariff, Parcels Post, Better Conditions For Wage Earners.

For President,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT
Of New York.
For Vice President,
HIRAM W. JOHNSON
Of California.

Coliseum, Chicago, Aug. 8.—Amid scenes of the greatest confusion the Progressive party nominated former President Theodore Roosevelt for president and Governor Hiram W. Johnson of California for vice president. Both nominations were made by acclamation. The word "National" was dropped from the party name.

The convention had been in session since 10 a. m. The delay in making the nominations was caused by exhaustive discussions over the platform in the committee on resolutions.

Colonel Roosevelt was put in nomination by Comptroller William A. Frederic of New York, and the nomination had been seconded by Judge Ben Lindsey of Colorado, Miss Joe Addams of Chicago, Alexander Hamilton of Georgia, General Horatio C. King of New York, Colonel F. F. Lloyd of Florida, General John E. McDowell of Tennessee, Henry J. Allen of Kansas, ex-Governor Garvin of Rhode Island, John J. Sullivan of Ohio and Robert S. Fisher of Arizona. Governor Johnson had been put in nomination by Judge John M. Parker of New Orleans, and the nomination had been seconded by C. S. Wheeler of California, James R. Garfield of Ohio, Bainbridge Colby of New York, Frederick Landis of Indiana, Raymond Robin of Illinois, Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, Governor Vessey of South Dakota, William Flinn of Pennsylvania and John R. Clede, a negro, of New York.

Accept With Thanks.

Colonel Roosevelt, arm in arm with Governor Johnson, appeared before the convention and was greeted with wild plaudits, a very bedlam of a demonstration, and formally accepted the nominations. The great audience of 15,000 souls sang the Doxology to the accompaniment of a band, the life and drum corps, a quartet of trombones and cornets, with the machine gun barking away up in the organ loft, and with the benediction the convention adjourned.

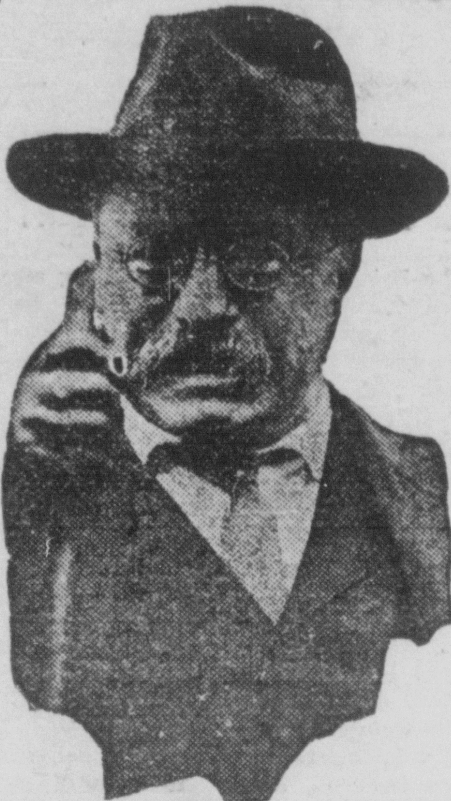

At that moment a great banner was dropped from the girders on the roof of the Coliseum with this legend: "Roosevelt and Johnson. New York and California. Hands across the continent. For there is neither east nor west; border nor breed; nor birth, when two strong men stand face to face, though they come from the ends of the earth."

From the very first moment to the last this convention has had the appearance of a great religious revival. Senator Dixon and others remarked in the close of the scene: "This is not politics; this is religion."

Temporary Chairman Beveridge, calling the convention to order, announced that Rabbi G. S. Levi of the Temple Israel of Chicago would say the invocation.

Medill McCormick of Illinois got a warm welcome when, as chairman of the committee on rules, he reported the recommendations of that committee to the effect that the new party would be known as the "Progressive" party. The new party has made no provision for delegates from the Philippines or Porto Rico, nor will they have representation on the national committee. Alaska, Hawaii and Washington, D. C., are admitted to the national committee, but the members are not permitted to vote. They are each permitted one delegate to the convention with a vote each. It was now well on toward noon and there was no indication that the committee on resolutions was ready to report. The committee had been in continuous session for nearly 62 hours. Colonel Roosevelt had desired as short a platform as possible. The committee had received so many planks that they were working like day laborers to chip them down to reasonable dimensions.

Adjourned Over Noon Hour.

Because the resolutions committee was so slow in completing its labors the convention adjourned until 1 o'clock. After the recess Mr. Allen of Kansas moved that the convention proceed to nominate candidates for president and vice president.

In due time, when the second speeches were over, William D. Lewis, dean of the law school of the University of Pennsylvania, chairman of the committee on resolutions, read the platform. This document differs widely, most drastically, from the platforms of the Republican and Democratic national parties. Especially does it condemn the Payne-Aldrich tariff law and the Democratic tariff plank at Baltimore, and in addition it demands the immediate repeal of the Canadian reciprocity act.

The platform leads off as follows: "The Progressive party, committed to the principle of government by a self-controlled democracy expressing its will through representatives of the people, pledges itself to secure such alterations in the fundamental law of the several states and of the United States as shall insure the representative character of the government. In particular the party declares for direct primaries for the nomination of state and national officers, for nation-wide preferential primaries for candidates for the presidency, for the direct election of United States senators by the people, and we urge on the states the policy of the short ballot, with responsibility to the people secured by the initiative, referendum and recall."

"The Progressive party, believing that a free people should have the power from time to time to amend their fundamental law so as to adapt it progressively to the changing needs of the people, pledges itself to provide a more easy and expeditious method of amending the fundamental constitution."

The platform then pledges itself to the following tasks:

Favor Votes For Women.

Equal suffrage to men and women alike; limitation of campaign contributions and expenditures and detailed publicity of both before as well as after primaries and elections; forbidding federal officeholders from holding office in state or national political organizations or taking part in political conventions; for the reform of legal procedure and judicial methods; effective legislation looking to the prevention of industrial accidents, occupational diseases, overwork, involuntary unemployment; the fixing of minimum safety and health standards for the various occupations; the prohibition of child labor; minimum wage standards for working women; prohibition of night work for women and the establishment of an 8-hour day for women and young persons; one day's rest in seven for all wage-workers; the 8-hour day in continuous 24-hour industries; abolition of contract convict labor system; strong national regulation of interstate commerce through a federal commission; tariff revision downward wherein duties are shown to be unjust or excessive; the establishment of a nonpartisan scientific tariff commission; a graduated inheritance tax; international agreement for the limitation of naval armament; the present policy of building two battleships a year; pensions for American soldiers, their widows and children; immediate creation of a parcels post with rates proportionate to distance and service.

There was more or less friction in the committee on platform over a liquor plank. Quite a number of the members desired a national plank calling for more or less prohibition, but Colonel Roosevelt decided that this was a state question and not a national one. In other words, he adopted a similar course to that of Colonel Bryan at Baltimore.

Colonel Roosevelt, in accepting the nomination, said in part: "Mr. Chairman and men and women who in this convention represent the high and honest purposes of the people of all our country, I come forward to thank you from my heart for the honor you have conferred on me and to say that of course I accept."

"That I hold it—and now I am measuring my words, I have been president, I have seen and known much of life—and I hold it by far the greatest honor and the greatest opportunity that has ever come to me

Dreadnought New York and Cruiser That Bore the Name

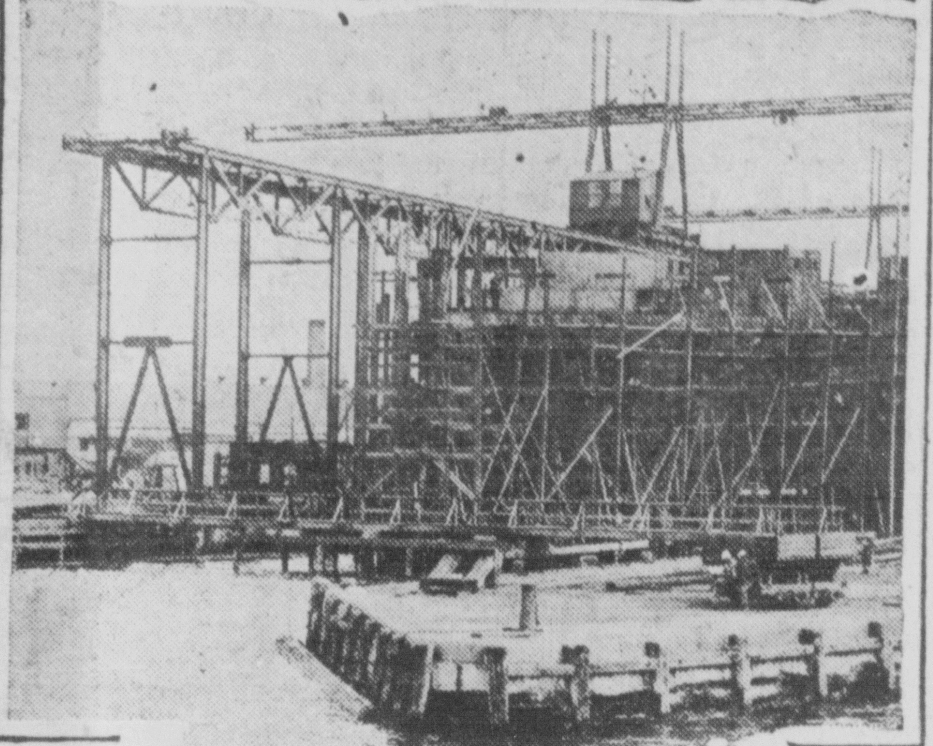

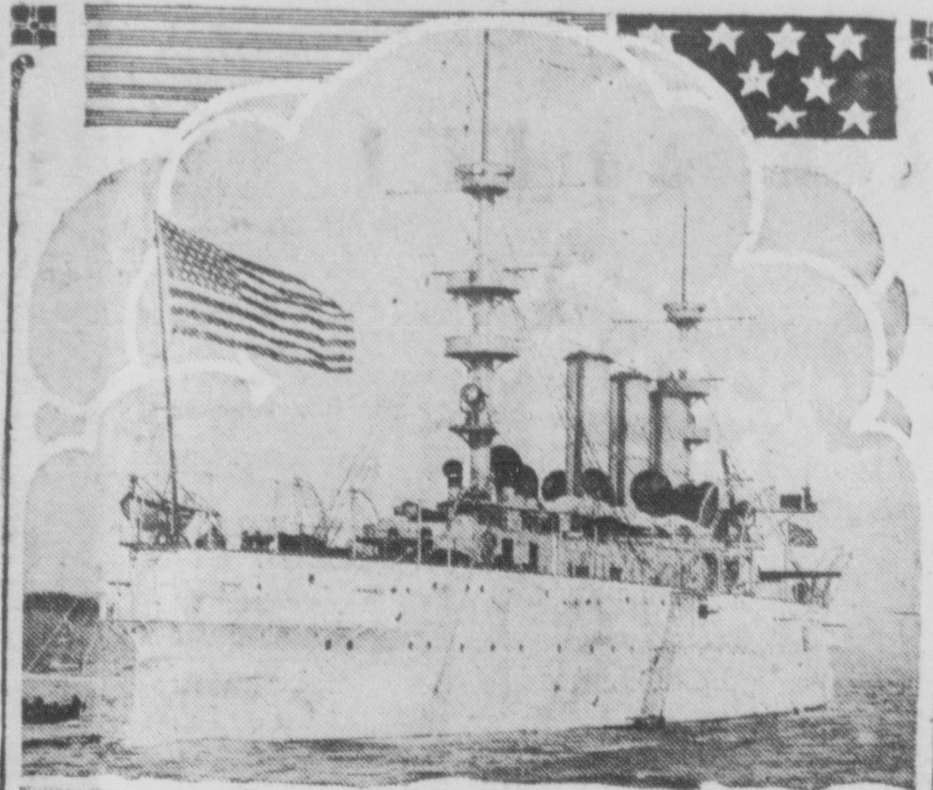

Photo of new vessel copyright, 1912, by American Press Association.

IN the matter of the naming of battleships the largest and most populous states are not recognized in proportion to their size and population. The Dreadnoughts Texas and New York—the latter now approaching completion at the New York navy yard—will not be quite so large as the Nevada and Oklahoma, which will have a displacement of 27,500 tons to the 27,000 tons of the battleships named after the Lone Star and Empire States. The New York will be a huge and expensive fighting machine for all that. It will have cost about $6,000,000 when it is launched in November and, with the Texas, will carry the heaviest guns of the navy, ten fourteen-inch and twenty-one five-inch guns. The name New York was for years borne by the armored cruiser, built in the days of "the new navy," which is now known as the Saratoga. She was in her time regarded as the best all round war vessel in the world, but that was nearly twenty years ago, and twenty years mean more to a warship than they do to a society belle. The new vessel is shown in process of construction.

Panic Ensues When Supports Under Huge Water Container on Top of Union-American Cigar Company's Plant in Pittsburgh Give Way—Employees on Lower Floors Jam Exits In Mad Effort to Escape and Many Are Hurt Before Police Arrive.

Pittsburg, Aug. 8.—When a water tank on the top of the Union-American Cigar company's building crushed through the roof and sixth and fifth floors, three girls were killed and a dozen badly injured, some fatally. A score of other persons suffered minor injuries.

The water tank was erected only a few days ago and water was being pumped into it for the first time when the accident occurred.

When the supports gave way the tank, holding about 3,000 gallons of water, plunged through the roof and carried away the sixth floor, which was not occupied. The tank and heavy debris shot to the fifth floor, where more than 150 employees, mostly girls, were completing their day's labor. Those not caught by the debris rushed for the stairs.

Upwards of 500 other employees working on lower floors heard the crash and screams. They, too, rushed for the exits. Within a moment the stairways were choked with a mass of struggling persons and many were hurt in this manner. Fire alarms were sounded and the firemen, aided by police, soon had conditions in hand.

SOMETHING NEW IN BUDGETS.

Since the enactment of the present code of laws providing for the government of municipalities, large and small throughout Ohio, the residents of the cities have heard a great deal, read a great deal more and comprehended very little about "budgets." Few people know a "budget" when they see it and few care enough about it to try to inform themselves on the subject.

The truth about the matter is that a budget, when understood, conveys a great deal of valuable information. The budgets are intended to enlighten the officials of the city and also the residents who foot the bills and prosper or suffer in their comfort and business, all according to whether the city government is good or bad.

Now in New York City, some time ago, the Bureau of Municipal Research presented to the public a budget exhibit and it worked well too. It is an object lesson budget. Instead of a jumbled mass of figures intelligible only to expert accountants, any one can understand the city affairs by this method of publicity.

Cincinnati is to have a big municipal budget exhibit the first two weeks in October and it is to be held under the direction of the same Bureau of Municipal Research. It will be the first budget exhibit on any size outside of the City of New York. Several thousand dollars have already been pledged towards the expense, and the largest available vacant floor space in the downtown business section has been secured for exposition purposes.

City departments, the University, the public schools, the county, the public library, and several civic associations working in co-operation with the city, will be invited to share in the exhibit. By charts and models will be shown what is being accomplished with the public funds, what new work is contemplated, and what economy and efficiency effected.

Cross sections of streets will be represented to show the effect of bad street foundations, infant milk stations in actual operations, leaking water faucets with a statement of the annual cost of water waste to the taxpayers, condemned weights and measures, and many other illustrations of good and bad methods and conditions. All of these and many other demonstrations are designed to interest the man who pays the bills.

Noontime meetings will be held each day for two weeks at which outside officials will be invited to discuss municipal improvements in their own cities, and where departmental heads will be asked to tell of the work of their departments and to explain the budgetary increases requested for the ensuing year. Special dates have been set aside for the entertainment of the councils and officials of the neighboring Ohio cities, Chambers of Commerce, Colleges, and other organizations which have shown interest in local municipal problems.

The Smith one percent tax law will probably compel Cincinnati city officials to ask for an additional tax levy of over a million dollars, and it will for the city departments to show how the present activities will be crippled by lack of funds if the extra levy fails to carry, and what needed extensions of their work will be rendered impossible. It is proposed to present clearly what has been accomplished in each line, so that the citizens may decide whether they shall be continued or not.

Also the great various municipal improvements planned—the rebuilding of the sewer system, the creation of a boulevard on the site of the canal, and the creation of new public markets will require careful consideration by the public before they are undertaken. So far as possible, models of proposed public improvements with statements of purposes, costs, and possible alternatives, will be placed on view to the end of securing intelligent public understanding and discussion of the projects.

Perhaps this budget exhibit plan will be found to be the vehicle by which the knowledge and appreciation of conditions can be brought home to the public.

Figures don't lie but if there is anything on earth which conveys less knowledge to the average busy man it is a mass of figures nicely blocked off in bunches and arranged in columns so as to come out with an exact balancing of totals.

It is not necessary for these figures to lie because so few people know, or take the time to find out, what they mean.

If an exhibit could be devised to show the crying need of this city for a sanitary sewer system, something which would tell the people in simple and emphatic manner just what awful conditions exist and just what the actual result of our neglect is, it is safe to say that not many days would elapse before some steps would be taken to better conditions.

The same would be true of streets and sidewalks and many other matters.

The people are willing to do if their attention could only be aroused. Let us all hope the budget exhibit is the key to the situation.

Poetry—Today

MARY AND HER LAMB, &C.

Mary had a little lamb,
With mint sauce on the side—
When Mary saw the bill for this
It shocked her so she cried.

Mary had a little veal,
A cutlet, fit to broil—
Her father to pay for that meal
All morning spent in toil.

Mary had a little steak—
A porterhouse, quite small,
And when the bill came in she wept,
"No dress for me this fall."

Mary had some bacon sliced—
'Twas streaked with lean and fat,
And now she knows she can't afford
To buy a new fall hat.

Mary had a little roast,
As juicy as could be,
Then Mary's papa promptly went
Right into bankruptcy.

Mary isn't eating meat;
She has a better plan,
She says its ladylike to be
A vegetarian.

"Yes, Mary, I know it, and I also know Mrs. Mason, the great English Hair Specialist, says 'that hair that is beginning to turn gray can be restored to its natural color and strength to its roots and the bulbs containing the coloring pigment, by intelligent treatment with a reliable tonic. So I have begun to use Mrs. Mason's Old English Shampoo Cream which is both a hair cleanser and a hair tonic."

"I am thoroughly convinced that Mrs. Mason was a great authority on the care of the hair else the Dutchess of Marlborough, Mme. Melba and the leading society women and physicians of New York, London and Paris would not have given her such unqualified endorsement for her hair preparations. Blackmer and Tanquary right here in our own city here just succeeded in obtaining the agency for it, and if you try it and don't like it they will return your money."

Prominent Woman Sues for Divorce

Mrs. Ella Hunsicker Hornbeck is plaintiff in a suit for divorce filed in Common Pleas court this morning by her attorney, Irvin F. Snyder, and Edgar C. Hornbeck is defendant.

In her petition the plaintiff avers that she was married to defendant January 18, 1885, to this marriage one child was born, Freda Hornbeck wife of Henry Mader; she further charges defendant with failure to provide for the past two years the plaintiff with the common necessities of life, food clothing and a house to live in, and that defendant has been guilty of habitual drunkenness during that period.

The plaintiff is a sister of Messrs. George and John Hunsicker of Williamsport and numbers her friends by a large circle of acquaintances.

Several months since the defendant while in a helpless condition from the effects of liquor, fell from a viaduct in Columbus, and had a leg broken; for some time previous to the above accident he was in the employ of Dr. Hartman, in the imported horse department.—Circleville Herald.

THE TRIALS OF A TRAVELER.

"I am a traveling salesman" writes E. E. Youngs, E. MOST DEADLY OF POISONS

A poison, the most powerful known, is reported to have been extracted by a German chemist from the seeds of the ricinus, the familiar castor oil plant, and has been attracting much attention on account of its remarkable properties. Its power is estimated to be so great that a gram—about a thirtieth of an ounce—would kill a million and a half guinea pigs. If administered so as to cause severe illness without death, it gives immunity against a larger quantity, and the dose can be gradually increased until more than 1,000 times as much can be endured as would kill an untreated animal. Though arsenic, morphine and other poisons can be taken in larger and larger quantities, nothing approaching this marvelous increase in dose can be borne.

FEW FILIPINOS OLD MAIDS

Although Filipino women do not usually marry early, grandmothers at thirty are not uncommon. Such as do not marry, and these are very few, generally retire from the world to the seclusion of a convent or beatrice in some capacity of another, and consequently the old maid of Europe and the United States is practically unknown. The Filipinos as a rule make good wives and tender mothers, and are very devoted to their husbands and children. The mother-in-law is also a rare avia. No Filipino would brook any interference between herself and her husband, so long as she lives with him. Whatever his shortcomings may be, he is her "marido" (husband), and as such always occupies the first place in her consideration.

TOP OF DROWNED CONTINENT

The British museum is outfitting an expedition to the Pacific to try to solve the problem of gigantic prehistoric stone images of human beings discovered on Carter island, a mere speck in the ocean, about 3,500 miles west of Chili.

It is thought that maybe this little isle of mystery is the last pinnacle of a submerged continent which once in bygone ages occupied the greater part of the South Pacific and possibly joined Asia and America. The inhabitants may have gradually been forced to the top of the last peak, there to perish, only after they had erected their wonderful monuments.

The island is only forty-five square miles in area, but on it there have been raised immense platforms facing the sea and formed of huge stones fitted together without cement. Some of the separate stones weigh five tons, and the sea wall at places is 30 feet high and 200 feet long. On the land side of the platforms there are broad stone terraces, on which stand, upon pedestals, huge figures carved out of lava from the crater of an extinct volcano several miles away.

There are in all 555 of these images, most of which have been thrown down perhaps thousands of years ago. The largest is sixty-eight feet long from the top of the head to the hips, and its nose is eleven feet in length. None of the images shows a figure below the hips and they seem to have been originally set on their pedestals as busts. Several of the busts weigh 250 tons apiece.

There is evidence that the work on the images suddenly ceased. Vast numbers of human skeletons are under the stone platforms, probably the bones of people who were sacrificed to the images.

Children Enjoy K. of P. Picnic

Supt. J. A. Tway and Mrs. Tway took the children of the Children's Home to the K. of P. picnic in the Rogers Grove, Wednesday.

The happy party reached the grounds early and at noon enjoyed a picnic spread under the wide branching trees. The day was one full of delight with the band, the merry-go-round and the various attractions of the picnic, and the children certainly had a royal good time.

Supt. and Mrs. Tway gave up their own day to them, kept the crowd of girls and boys together, seeing that nothing was missed.

SOMETHING NEW IN BUDGETS.

Since the enactment of the present code of laws providing for the government of municipalities, large and small throughout Ohio, the residents of the cities have heard a great deal, read a great deal more and comprehended very little about "budgets." Few people know a "budget" when they see it and few care enough about it to try to inform themselves on the subject.

The truth about the matter is that a budget, when understood, conveys a great deal of valuable information. The budgets are intended to enlighten the officials of the city and also the residents who foot the bills and prosper or suffer in their comfort and business, all according to whether the city government is good or bad.

Now in New York City, some time ago, the Bureau of Municipal Research presented to the public a budget exhibit and it worked well too. It is an object lesson budget. Instead of a jumbled mass of figures intelligible only to expert accountants, any one can understand the city affairs by this method of publicity.

Cincinnati is to have a big municipal budget exhibit the first two weeks in October and it is to be held under the direction of the same Bureau of Municipal Research. It will be the first budget exhibit on any size outside of the City of New York. Several thousand dollars have already been pledged towards the expense, and the largest available vacant floor space in the downtown business section has been secured for exposition purposes.

City departments, the University, the public schools, the county, the public library, and several civic associations working in co-operation with the city, will be invited to share in the exhibit. By charts and models will be shown what is being accomplished with the public funds, what new work is contemplated, and what economy and efficiency effected.

Cross sections of streets will be represented to show the effect of bad street foundations, infant milk stations in actual operations, leaking water faucets with a statement of the annual cost of water waste to the taxpayers, condemned weights and measures, and many other illustrations of good and bad methods and conditions. All of these and many other demonstrations are designed to interest the man who pays the bills.

Noontime meetings will be held each day for two weeks at which outside officials will be invited to discuss municipal improvements in their own cities, and where departmental heads will be asked to tell of the work of their departments and to explain the budgetary increases requested for the ensuing year. Special dates have been set aside for the entertainment of the councils and officials of the neighboring Ohio cities, Chambers of Commerce, Colleges, and other organizations which have shown interest in local municipal problems.

The Smith one percent tax law will probably compel Cincinnati city officials to ask for an additional tax levy of over a million dollars, and it will for the city departments to show how the present activities will be crippled by lack of funds if the extra levy fails to carry, and what needed extensions of their work will be rendered impossible. It is proposed to present clearly what has been accomplished in each line, so that the citizens may decide whether they shall be continued or not.

Also the great various municipal improvements planned—the rebuilding of the sewer system, the creation of a boulevard on the site of the canal, and the creation of new public markets will require careful consideration by the public before they are undertaken. So far as possible, models of proposed public improvements with statements of purposes, costs, and possible alternatives, will be placed on view to the end of securing intelligent public understanding and discussion of the projects.

Perhaps this budget exhibit plan will be found to be the vehicle by which the knowledge and appreciation of conditions can be brought home to the public.

Figures don't lie but if there is anything on earth which conveys less knowledge to the average busy man it is a mass of figures nicely blocked off in bunches and arranged in columns so as to come out with an exact balancing of totals.

It is not necessary for these figures to lie because so few people know, or take the time to find out, what they mean.

If an exhibit could be devised to show the crying need of this city for a sanitary sewer system, something which would tell the people in simple and emphatic manner just what awful conditions exist and just what the actual result of our neglect is, it is safe to say that not many days would elapse before some steps would be taken to better conditions.

The same would be true of streets and sidewalks and many other matters.

The people are willing to do if their attention could only be aroused. Let us all hope the budget exhibit is the key to the situation.

Poetry—Today

MARY AND HER LAMB, &C.

Mary had a little lamb,
With mint sauce on the side—
When Mary saw the bill for this
It shocked her so she cried.

Mary had a little veal.
A cutlet, fit to broil—
Her father to pay for that meal
All morning spent in toil.

Mary had a little steak—
A porterhouse, quite small,
And when the bill came in she wept;
"No dress for me this fall."

Mary had some bacon sliced—
'Twas streaked with lean and fat.
And now she knows she can't afford
To buy a new fall hat.

Mary had a little roast,
As juicy as could be,
Then Mary's papa promptly went
Right into bankruptcy.

Mary isn't eating meat;
She has a better plan,
She says its ladylike to be
A vegetarian.

Vanishes From Sight Search Made Proves Futile

Former Columbus Society Girl Disappears From Kansas City.

Columbus, O., Aug. 8.—Every large city in the country is being searched by friends and relatives for Mrs. John S. Boggs, who was Miss Ethel Keating, well-known pianist and society girl of Columbus and daughter of Attorney and Mrs. T. J. Keating. Mrs. Boggs disappeared last Friday from Kansas City, where she was temporarily stationed with her husband, and all search for her has so far been without avail.

A man who, as the head of a great state, has practically applied in that state for the benefit of the people of that state the principles which we intend to apply throughout the Union as a whole. We have nominated the only type of man who ever ought to be nominated, as for the vice presidency we have nominated a man fit at the moment to be president of the United States.

"And, friends, with all my heart and soul, with every particle of high purpose that is in me, I pledge you my word to do everything I can, to put every particle of courage, of common sense and of strength that I have at your disposal and to endeavor, so far as strength is given me, to live up to the obligations you have put upon me and to endeavor to carry out in the interests of our whole people the policies to which you have today solemnly dedicated yourselves to the millions of men and women for whom you speak. I thank you."

Governor Johnson in his speech of acceptance paid high tribute to the character of Colonel Roosevelt, and said his one desire "shall be from now until November, with what virility, what force, what fighting strength I have, to follow him under his leadership, to go forward to better and surer things in this country of ours, and to win the battle that you have just commenced in this nation."

strike from the Panama canal bill the clause which gives free tolls to coastwise shipping. Mr. Burton's motion failed, 44 to 11.

The vote was thought to be significant as foreshadowing a vote in favor of free tolls for all American ships and a clear disregard of Great Britain's protest. The only change in the house-bill provision giving free tolls to coastwise shipping was the insertion, on motion of Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia, of the qualifying word "exclusively," which limited the free tolls to vessels engaged exclusively in such trade.

This was adopted, 32 to 16. The senator from Georgia tried to have another amendment adopted requiring coastwise vessels to pay the cost of the actual operating expenses of the canal during their passage through, without recourse upon the United States for damages resulting from injuries due to accidents in the passage. This was rejected.

OHIO HAPPENINGS

Spree Proves Disastrous.

Columbus, O., Aug. 8.—Jacob A. La Follette, former treasurer of Guernsey county, who has enjoyed soft snaps as trustee for several years at the penitentiary, where he is serving five years for embezzlement of his county's funds, was reduced to third grade in the prison ranking and put to work on the stonepile inside the prison enclosure. His reduction in rank comes as the result of a series of disclosures concerning his crooked dealing, which culminated when he was found at the stable across the street from the prison with a quart of regular fire-eye whisky in his pocket.

Plans of Healthiers.

Columbus, O., Aug. 8.—At the next session of the legislature, state health officials will urge the passage of a law regulating the activities of persons afflicted with tuberculosis. They will seek to make the law provide that tuberculosis patients who refuse to obey the regulations laid down by the state board of health shall be segregated by order of the court and placed in an institution, and if necessary, be restrained from leaving the institution; also the compulsory establishment in each county of special institutions for the care of tuberculosis patients.

Capture Alleged Sheriff.

Columbus, O., Aug. 8.—"Sheriff J. A. Giles," who flimflammed a state-house attaché by inducing him to sign a check to which the name of Woodrow Wilson had been forged, has been captured at Dover, N. J., according to a message received at the adjutant general's office from Superintendent Frank Moore of the New Jersey reformatory at Rahway. The alleged sheriff is a paroled prisoner from the reformatory. If the Ohio authorities want the "sheriff" they can get him after he finishes his term in the New Jersey reformatory.

Official Short and Missing.

Columbus, O., Aug. 8.—State Examiner C. P. Godfrey reported that C. E. Stocklen, treasurer of the school and township funds of Circleville, who has been missing since the examination of his books commenced, June 13, is short $11,256.70. Godfrey says that Stocklen's books show the money to be on deposit, but that the banks claim that the money is not there.

Shoot and Rob Agent.

Bellevue, O., Aug. 8.—R. Keough, night ticket agent and operator at the Lake Shore depot, was shot in the left side by two robbers, who forced him to open the safe in the ticket office. Keough at first refused and one of the men shot him. He was then made to open the safe and the robbers escaped with the contents.

National Guard to Shoot.

Columbus, O., Aug. 8.—The national guard will have a shoot at Camp Perry this year after all. The Ohio National Guard association has arranged for this. It will probably be held the week beginning Sept. 16. The executive committee of the association decided on the shoot at a meeting held in Columbus Monday afternoon.

Vanishes From Sight Search Made Proves Futile

Former Columbus Society Girl Disappears From Kansas City.

Columbus, O., Aug. 8.—Every large city in the country is being searched by friends and relatives for Mrs. John S. Boggs, who was Miss Ethel Keating, well-known pianist and society girl of Columbus and daughter of Attorney and Mrs. T. J. Keating. Mrs. Boggs disappeared last Friday from Kansas City, where she was temporarily stationed with her husband, and all search for her has so far been without avail.

"In Governor Johnson we have a man whose every word is made good by the deeds that he has done. A man who, as the head of a great state, has practically applied in that state for the benefit of the people of that state the principles which we intend to apply throughout the Union as a whole. We have nominated the only type of man who ever ought to be nominated, as for the vice presidency we have nominated a man fit at the moment to be president of the United States.

"And, friends, with all my heart and soul, with every particle of high purpose that is in me, I pledge you my word to do everything I can, to put every particle of courage, of common sense and of strength that I have at your disposal and to endeavor, so far as strength is given me, to live up to the obligations you have put upon me and to endeavor to carry out in the interests of our whole people the policies to which you have today solemnly dedicated yourselves to the millions of men and women for whom you speak. I thank you."

Governor Johnson in his speech of acceptance paid high tribute to the character of Colonel Roosevelt, and said his one desire "shall be from my heart to follow him under his leadership to go forward to better and wiser things in this country of ours, and to win the battle that you have just commenced in this nation."

President Taft, it is said, is anxious that Harding be named by the state central committee Saturday if Daugherty declines to run. At a conference of Taft leaders attended by Assistant Secretary of the Interior Laylin, A. I. Vorys, Daugherty and Harding, it was decided to confer with members of the state committee and candidates on the state ticket before taking any definite steps looking to the selection of a candidate. Besides Daugherty and Harding, General R. B. Brown of Zanesville, candidate for lieutenant governor; United States Attorney U. G. Alliance Merchant Believed to Be Black Hand Victim.

Alliance, O., Aug. 8.—Joseph Butera, an Italian merchant, was shot twice through the head, dying later in a hospital. It is believed that he was a victim of a Black Hand plot. "Sam shot me," Butera told the police, and this is the only clue they have to work on. A search is being made for the murderer. According to his own statement, Butera was a former member of a Black Hand society in Europe. He also said that four former attempts to take his life had been made because he left the organization.

Suffragette Is Put Away

Judith, Aug. 8.—For the severest punishment that has yet been inflicted upon an suffragette was dealt out when Judge Madden sentenced two women to five years' imprisonment each and another to seven months' imprisonment. The two who are to serve five years are Miss Gladys Evans, convicted of setting fire to the Theater Royal when Premier Asquith was about to speak there last July, and Mrs. Mary Leigh, who was convicted of throwing a hatchet at Mr. Asquith and John Redmond and wounding the latter. The woman who is to serve seven months is Miss Lizzie Baker, who pleaded guilty to being an accomplice of Miss Evans.

Yanks Ships Will Pass Free

strike from the Panama canal bill the clause which gives free tolls to coastwise shipping. Mr. Burton's motion failed, 44 to 11.

The vote was thought to be significant as foreshadowing a vote in favor of free tolls for all American ships and a clear disregard of Great Britain's protest. The only change in the house bill provision giving free tolls to coastwise shipping was the insertion, on motion of Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia, of the qualifying word "exclusively," which limited the free tolls to vessels engaged exclusively in such trade.

This was adopted, 32 to 16. The senator from Georgia tried to have another amendment adopted requiring coastwise vessels to pay the cost of the actual operating expenses of the canal during their passage through, without recourse upon the United States for damages resulting from injuries due to accidents in the passage. This was rejected.

New Holland was again visited by a disastrous conflagration early this morning, and a pile of smoking ruins and hanging walls are all that remain of one of the principal business sections of the thriving town, the loss being variously estimated at $25,000 to $40,000, although a conservative estimate places it at nearly $35,000.

The fire started shortly before one o'clock and burned furiously until the heroic fire fighters succeeded in stopping it after some three hours' of incessant fighting, during which they displayed their ability to cope with the fire demon even though they had little to fight with.

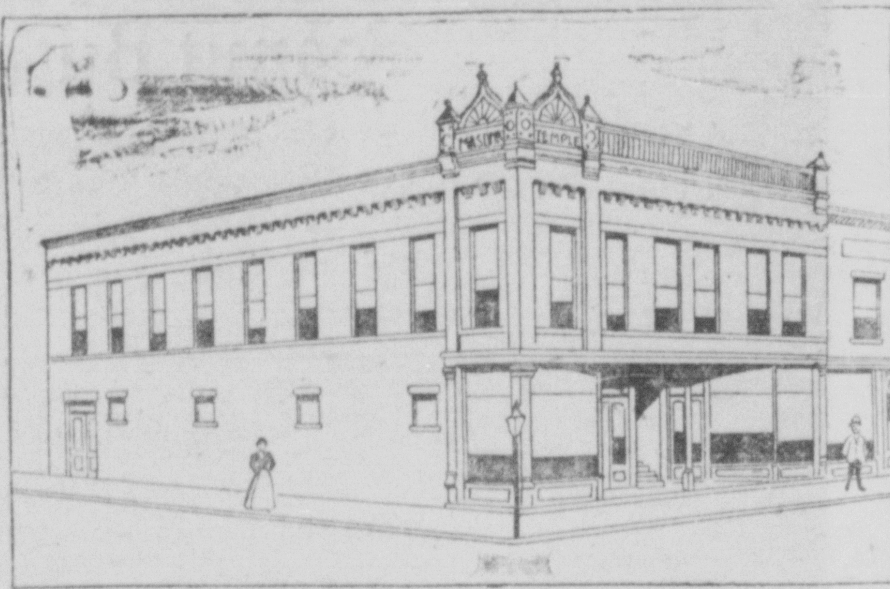

The building burned were owned by T. C. Gooley, R. F. Maddux, George McCrea and Lydia Scurlock. With the exception of the George

The approximate loss of goods, fixtures and other property outside of the loss to buildings is estimated as follows: T. C. Gooley's store, $10,000; Templin's grocery, $2,000; McCrea livery barn, $1,000; Dr. Teeters' $1,000; Maddux shop $800; Dr. May $100; Dr. Kaler $100; Dr. Ervin $500; M. S. Bartholomew, damage to residence and household goods, $300; James Gooley, household goods, $500.

men worked like demons and others busied themselves in removing property they could from the threatened buildings.

The livery horses were turned loose and driven into the streets. The buggies were about all saved. Some of the office fixtures of the physicians were removed to a place of safety. A great deal of the property in the Maddux carriage factory was removed, including some 15 new buggies. The flames quickly spread from the Templin grocery to the Gooley clothing store, the physician's offices, livery stable and the Maddux building. The residence of J. H. McQuay, formerly of Good Hope, and also the residences of M. S. Bartholomew and Wm. Bryant were threatened, and the household goods removed from the two latter resifourth to one-half insurance, but the total insurance will not exceed $15,000. Dr. Ervin, who married a Fayette county woman, had no insurance. Mr. Gooley's insurance on building and goods will probably be about $8,000.

Origin of Fire.

The fire originated in the rear portion of Templin's grocery, but from what cause has not been ascertained. Mr. Templin was in the store as late as midnight and when he left there was no sign of fire. When the flames were discovered by nearby residents the alarm was quickly given to the Citizens' Telephone operator, Roy Vandergriff, and he immediately spread the alarm by phone. A few moments later the dences.

The falling fire brands threatened to start other fires, but these were closely watched and extinguished. The slight western breeze prevented the flames from eating further west, although almost the entire weatherboarding was burned from the Bartholomew residence. Even then it was saved by the fire fighters.

A frame building on the east side of the street was blistered and scorched, but it was saved by drenching with water. The town hall stood less than 100 feet away, while the Masonic Temple block was just across the street to the north. The newly constructed M. E. church stood about 100 feet west of the fire zone.

Messrs T. C. Gooley, Geo. McCrea, R. F. Maddux and Dr. Teeters were out of town during the night, although Dr. Teeters was located in camp and arrived just as his office had commenced to burn.

This is the fourth time Mr. Gooley has lost his place of business by fire, the last time being in August, 1898 when an entire block was wiped out.

Aid Summoned.

A call for aid was sent to this city soon after the fire broke out, and two auto loads of men, including Fire Chief Paul, hurried over but the fire was under control when they arrived.

Thursday morning when a Herald reporter visited the scene the town was crowded with citizens from the surrounding countryside. It is a hard blow to New Holland, but the progressive spirit has already manifested itself, and one of the losers is already planning to rebuild. It is thought the entire block will be rebuilt with better buildings than ever.

The Citizens Telephone Company lost a number of phones and the Bell company had five long distance wires destroyed. Mr. Heiskell of this city had restored the lines by ten o'clock. The Postal Telegraph wire also went down.

The Washington Gas and Electric Company lost about $75, and the lights at New Holland were put out of commission for the time being, but repairs were made late Thursday.

Luck Was With Telephone Men

Roy Ewing and Durward Murphy, two Citizens Telephone employees of this city, nearly met death under a freight train in New Holland Thursday morning.

The two men were called to that place to repair the damage done to the Citizen plant system at that place, and were in the act of crossing the Pennsylvania tracks when a freight train bore down upon them, and dashed by just as the rig cleared the tracks. A second's time probably saved their lives.

REST TENT AT FAIR GROUNDS.

There will be provided upon the Fair Grounds a large rest tent, which will be open to the general public. Mothers with children in arms are especially invited to use the tent.

LAST SAD RITES OVER TROLLEY CAR VICTIM

The funeral of Clyde Larrimer was held Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock in Grace M. E. church.

The sad sequence to the tragic death which in so short a time has plunged the dead man's family, lodge comrades, business associates and friends in deep sorrow.

It was one of the largest funerals ever held in the church, auditorium and galleries filled to overflowing and many standing. The entire center of the auditorium was reserved for the order of Odd Fellows, of which Mr. Larrimer had been a leading member and which had the services in charge.

The turn out of the order was so large that the section reserved was inadequate. In full regalia the members of Temple Lodge paid their brother a sad farewell and realized that few could be so ill spared.

The Junior Order American Mechanics also attended in a body. Deeply impressing were the funeral services conducted by Rev. T. W. Locke, of Grace church. A member of the lodge and in touch with its inner meanings, the pastor had chosen, with singular appropriateness, to use as the basis of the talk which followed the memoir, Jonathan's warning to David, "Only a Step Between Thee and Death." Its fitness was doubly appreciated when it was recalled that Mr. Larrimer had played the important role of Jonathan in the putting on of the First Degree, which has been so notable a feature of local I. O. O. F. work.

Mr. Larrimer's work was particularly fine and the Imperial First Degree Staff is inconsolable over his loss. The pastor portrayed the role of Jonathan as carried out in all its strength of character by the deceased in both lodge work and everyday life and made this the prominent theme of his sermon. He also extolled Mr. Larrimer's work in the Sunday school and in the church and the sunny disposition so inseparable from the man.

A quartet, Miss Gardner, Miss Mary Craig, Mr. Dalby, Mr. Winchel Craig sang favorite hymns, with Miss Light at the organ. Friends and the long line of lodge comrades followed in the funeral cortege to the Washington cemetery. Over the grave Temple Lodge conducted its beautiful ritualistic service in charge of Noble Grand J. A. Edge, and Chaplain, H. D. Chaffin.

The pall bearers were Odd Fellows, Allen Bonecutter, O. L. Peart, Wm. DeWees, Arthur Miller, Sherman Bishop, Jacob Elliot.

The floral remembrances were magnificent, forty pieces besides many cut flowers. The Imperial Degree Staff sent an exceedingly handsome emblematic design, a large shield of white roses, bordered with purple and pierced with a broken sword, pink roses. Temple Lodge sent a basket of roses and lilies. The Junior Order a pillow, Masons a casket spray, Daughters of Rebecca, a flat design, wreaths from the Larrimer Laundry Co. and its employees and double spray from Grace Sunday School.

Those who come from a distance for the funeral were the son, Walter, from Sidney, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith and son Orville, from Dayton, Mrs. Henry Scott, Mr. Floyd Saxton, Greenfield, Mrs. Mead James, Milledgeville.

Physical Director For the Y. M. C. A.

At the special meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Y. M. C. A. last night, Mr. J. W. McClung, Assistant Physical Director of Evansville, Ind., was elected Physical Director of the local Y. M. C. A.

Mr. McClung is a very pleasing man to meet and is of right weight and build to be a good gymnast. He will assume his duties on August 15th. A swimming campaign is to be launched on the 19th under his direction and a special effort will be made to teach all men and boys to swim.

McCrea Livery Stable the buildings were all constructed of brick, the Gooley block having been erected last year and it will cost fully $20,000 to replace the burned buildings.

The Losses.

Many of New Holland's foremost business and professional men are heavy losers, as the burned buildings housed the big clothing store of T. C. Gooley, the Templin grocery, McCrea's Livery Barn, R. F. Maddux carriage and blacksmith shop, Dr. A. O. Ervin office, Dr. A. L. Teeters, dentist, Dr. A. L. Teeters office and Dr. A. S. Kaler's office.

Fighting The Fire.

The town's only fire fighting apparatus is a small chemical engine, but it was soon found that it was almost useless in the face of the rapidly spreading flames. Several hundred people soon thronged the streets but less than fifty could do effective work owing to lack of water. But these

NEW HOLLAND SUFFERS $35,000 LOSS BY FIRE

Early Morning Conflagration Destroys T. C. Gooley Block, Maddux, Scurlock and McCrea Buildings, and Threatens the Entire Business Center.

Fire Starts in Templin Grocery, and Burns for Three Hours Before Heroic Fire-fighters Win Herculean Struggle.

BIG FIRE OF 1898 RECALLED

Bucket Brigade Handicapped for Water Supply--Origin of Fire Not Known--Much Valuable Property Saved--Four of the Principal Losers Out of Town. Aid Sent From This City--Citizen Phone Operator Arouses Sleeping Citizens--Buildings Will Be Replaced.

New Holland was again visited by a disastrous conflagration early this morning, and a pile of smoking ruins and hanging walls are all that remain of one of the principal business sections of the thriving town, the loss being variously estimated at $25,000 to $40,000, although a conservative estimate places it at nearly $35,000.

The fire started shortly before one o'clock and burned furiously until the heroic fire fighters succeeded in stopping it after some three hours' of incessant fighting, during which they displayed their ability to cope with the fire demon even though they had little to fight with.

The building burned were owned by T. C. Gooley, R. F. Maddux, George McCrea and Lydia Scurlock. With the exception of the George

The approximate loss of goods, fixtures and other property outside of the loss to buildings is estimated as follows: T. C. Gooley's store, $10,000; Templin's grocery, $2,000; McCrea livery barn, $1,000; Dr. Teeters $1,000; Maddux shop $800; Dr. May $100; Dr. Kaler $100; Dr. Ervin $500; M. S. Bartholomew, damage to residence and household goods, $300; James Gooley, household goods, $500.

men worked like demons and others busied themselves in removing property they could from the threatened buildings.

The livery horses were turned loose and driven into the streets. The buggies were about all saved. Some of the office fixtures of the physicians were removed to a place of safety. A great deal of the property in the Maddux carriage factory was removed, including some 15 new buggies. The flames quickly spread from the Templin grocery to the Gooley clothing store, the physician's offices, livery stable and the Maddux building. The residence of J. H. McQuay, formerly of Good Hope, and also the residences of M. S. Bartholomew and Wm. Bryant were threatened, and the household goods removed from the two latter resifourth to one-half insurance, but the total insurance will not exceed $15,000. Dr. Ervin, who married a Fayette county woman, had no insurance. Mr. Gooley's insurance on building and goods will probably be about $8,000.

Origin of Fire.

The fire originated in the rear portion of Templin's grocery, but from what cause has not been ascertained. Mr. Templin was in the store as late as midnight and when he left there was no sign of fire. When the flames were discovered by nearby residents the alarm was quickly given to the Citizens' Telephone operator, Roy Vandergriff, and he immediately spread the alarm by phone. A few moments later the dences.

The falling fire brands threatened to start other fires, but these were closely watched and extinguished. The slight western breeze prevented the flames from eating further west, although almost the entire weatherboarding was burned from the Bartholomew residence. Even then it was saved by the fire fighters.

A frame building on the east side of the street was blistered and scorched, but it was saved by drenching with water. The town hall stood less than 100 feet away, while the Masonic Temple block was just across the street to the north. The newly constructed M. E. church stood about 100 feet west of the fire zone.

Messrs T. C. Gooley, Geo. McCrea, R. F. Maddux and Dr. Teeters were out of town during the night, although Dr. Teeters was located in camp and arrived just as his office had commenced to burn.

This is the fourth time Mr. Gooley has lost his place of business by fire, the last time being in August, 1898 when an entire block was wiped out.

Aid Summoned.

A call for aid was sent to this city soon after the fire broke out, and two auto loads of men, including Fire Chief Paul, hurried over but the fire was under control when they arrived.

Thursday morning when a Herald reporter visited the scene the town was crowded with citizens from the surrounding countryside. It is a hard blow to New Holland, but the progressive spirit has already manifested itself, and one of the losers is already planning to rebuild. Prominent Young Farmer Probably Fatally Injured

Mr. Beryl Cavinee, aged 30, son of Mr. Isaac Cavinee and a son-in-law of Mr. Ed. Seiborn of the Snow Hill pike, was struck by lightning while near Crooksville, Perry county, Wednesday evening, and perhaps fatally injured. F. C. Moore, a farmer of that community was also rendered unconscious by the same bolt and may not recover.

Mr. Cavinee and Moore were out in a field during a storm, and the bolt struck a tree near them; and part of the bolt apparently divided and a portion of it struck the two men. Both were picked up unconscious and Mr. Cavinee remained unconscious all night and Thursday morning was somewhat better, with a fair chance of recovery.

He had gone to Perry county to purchase live stock, and was engaged in this work when injured. He lives on the Bogus road east of this city, and is a hustling young farmer with many friends.

Upon receiving the news of the tragedy, Mrs. Cavinee and Mr. Isaac Cavinee were driven to the injured man's bedside, by Mr. Ben Jamison, arriving late in the night.

Miss Jean Shultz, of St. Louis, Mo., is the guest of Miss Edna Fenn.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Sorrell have returned from a three weeks' visit at Waverly.

Mr. and Mrs. John Conard of Hillsboro, are spending the day with Mr. and Mrs. Newton Chaney.

Mr. Jess Blackmore made a business trip to Springfield yesterday. His daughter, Romaine, accompanied him.

Miss Helen Glascock has returned from an outing trip to Lakeside. Miss Ethel Calvert, who accompanied her, remained at the resort.

Mrs. J. A. Shoop, of Chicago is visiting her mother, Mrs. Rebecca Perrill. Supt. Shoop and sons will join her in a short time.

Mrs. Ella Cross and daughter, who have been the guests of Mrs. Ruth Brownell and daughter, Miss Lucy, left yesterday for their home at Hoosac Falls, N. Y.

Mrs. Sue Aruzi came up from Bainbridge last evening to accompany her sister, Mrs. Rebecca Perrill, to Franklin Park, Columbus, today to attend the Chenniworth reunion.

Mrs. Claude Saxton, of Richmond, Ind., and daughter, Miss Jane Saxton leave in the morning for Toledo, to be the guest of Mrs. Clarence Sapp. They will also make side trips to various lake resorts.

Mrs. Bertha Arthur and son, Edwin, of Wilmington, Mrs. Faucett, of Gloucester, O., Mrs. Arthur and Miss Madeline Arthur of New Vienna, are the guests of Mrs. W. B. Rogers. Mrs. Arthur has severed her connection with the Wilmington College.

Mrs. Lizzie Gates was operated on by Dr. Sherman Leach, of Columbus, at the Hodson Hospital last night. The operation was a very serious one and Mrs. Gates is thought to be doing as well as possible. Dr. C. C. Hazzard was the attending physician.

Two British Peeresses In An Elizabethan Pageant

AN interesting incident of the exhibition, "Shakespeare's England," at Earl's Court, London, was the Elizabethan pageant in which appeared many of the members of the British aristocracy. The Duke of Marlborough and the Earl of Craven, for instance, mounted and in full armor, were opponents in the tournament, which was the principal feature of the pageant. Many titled women took part in the pageant, wearing the same costumes as at the Shakespeare ball, which was a glittering spectacle. Among these were the two who figured in the illustration—the Duchess of Westminster and Lady Grosvenor. American peeresses in evidence at the tournament and ball were the Countesses of Craven and Stafford (formerly Miss Cornelia Martin and Mrs. Samuel Colgate) and Lady Naylor Leyland (formerly Miss Jennie Chamberlain). Several wealthy Americans who have not achieved titles occupied seats which cost them $50 (10 guineas) each. Mrs. George Cornwallis-West (formerly Miss Jennie Jerome of New York), who originated and promoted "Shakespeare's England," has planned a similar exhibition and tournament on this side of the Atlantic.

ENJOYABLE DAY SPENT AT ANNUAL FIELD DAY

While the weather man did not smile all day on the annual Picnic and Field day of the Bloomingburg Knights of Pythias Wednesday, a very enjoyable day resulted, and a crowd of some 2,000 persons were in attendance.

The picnic was again held at the beautiful natural grove on the Rogers farm three miles north of Bloomingburg, and all events on the program from the ball games to the balloon ascension took place.

The field events were highly interesting, and created no end of amusement and entertainment. In the morning the White Oak ball team and a picked team under the title of Bloomingburg, afforded entertainment, and the game was called off in the 7th inning when the score stood 14 to 8 in favor of the Bloomingburg players.

In the afternoon, following the rain, Bloomingburg defeated Sedalia 15 to 6.

An event which was not down on the program took place when a negro who was playing the ball-dodging game was knocked out of the canvas by a well directed ball thrown by Alva Slagle, a base ball pitcher. The fellow was rendered unconscious from a slight concussion of the brain and remained in an unconscious condition for sometime. His condition is said to be not serious. He was from Tennessee and it was the first time that he ever was knocked out of his place in the canvas.

The picnic was not as big a success financially as last year.

The Smoking Mountain.

In 1897 I climbed two volcanoes in Mexico—Popocatepetl or "the Smoking Mountain," about 17,800 feet, and Orizaba, the former the most famous because within view from Mexico City and thus a source of especial pride and admiration to the inhabitants, who have been loath to believe that any other of their mountains could be higher. Popo has a really splendid crater, about half a mile across and one thousand feet deep. The walls are generally vertical, but in one or two places it is possible to descend. When workers are engaged in collecting sulphur, machinery is used to hoist them up and down. From Popo's summit there is a glorious prospect, not alone of the immense crater, but of the beautiful "White Lady," Ixtaccihuatl, reclining a thousand feet below; of Orizaba on the far horizon, and of the charming valley of Mexico.—Annie S. Peck in "The Christian Herald."

Opaque Windows.

The building contractor let loose some of his most emphatic phrases when he found that the man who had been hired to daub whitening all over the windows had not half done the job.

"That man doesn't seem to understand what the windows in a half-finished building are whitened for," he said. "We don't plaster them over with chalk to prevent the public from seeing the unfinished condition of the interior, but to keep the workmen from battering out the glass. Transparent glass looks just about as transparent as air to the man who is moving a wooden or iron beam, in a hurry, and he is likely to ram the end of it through an expensive window, but when the glass is coated with white it becomes visible, and the workmen hand their material in through the door."

UP STAIRS

The younger society of Washington C. H. was indebted to the Tau Mu Tau sorority for one of the most brilliant affairs of the season, last night, when twenty couples were entertained at the home of Miss Constance Ballard. The guests were confined strictly to the Tau Mu Tau and their guests and escorts. The club girls were in charge, and together with Miss Ballard's hospitality, it was a most enjoyable affair and one not to be forgotten soon.

The wide porch was decorated in Japanese lanterns and blackeyed Susans, the club flower, while clusters of pink gladioli formed decoration in the house. The merry company spent the time in music, games and dancing until the wee small hours.

Refreshing punch was served during the evening and later a delicious luncheon, Mrs. A. S. Ballard assisting.

The out-of-town guests included Misses Doris Knight, of Columbus, Arline Beale and Mary Lutz, of Mt. Sterling, Audna Gallimore and Mary Astin, of Wilmington, and Reppa Furry, of Springfield.

Prof. Ostheiner, of Greenfield, the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Hodson favored the advanced pupils' of Miss. Light's piano studio with an impromptu piano recital that was an inspiration to their own work as well as a great pleasure.

Prof. Ostheimer prefaced his program with a talk upon his own work and study under Leschetitzky, in Vienna. His program culled from the gems of modern and classical composers, was most beautiful. His clean cut technique musical interpretation and magnificent octave work place him in the highest rank as a brilliant and artistic pianist.

Miss Edith Gardner added a beautiful vocal solo, one of Miss McClure's compositions, and Mr. Keisley an exquisite violin solo to the delightful program.

A charming affair of this morning was a Kensington, given by Miss Urcell Porter to introduce the quartet of pretty girls who composed the house party. She is entertaining this week Miss Audna Gallimore of Wilmington, Miss Arlene Beale, of Mt. Sterling, Miss Mary Lutz of Chillicothe, Miss Reppa Furry, of Springfield.

Other attractive visiting girls were Miss Doris Knight, of Columbus, Miss Mary Austin, of Wilmington, Miss Jean Shultz, of St. Louis. The Porter home was beautifully decorated, a yellow and green color scheme carried out in quantities of marigolds, golden glow, nasturtiums and fern, and a bower of greenery tastefully arranged in one corner of the porch for a huge punch bowl, embedded in green.

The same color scheme was effective in the delicious summer collation served.

Miss Hazel Horton won the favor, a Kensington bag, in an entertaining guessing contest.

Mrs. Blanche Porter assisted her fair young daughter, also Mrs. Auburn Duff, Miss Dorothy Rogers and Lora Ellen Tharp.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS

Mr. Frank White, of Batavia, was a business visitor here yesterday.

Miss Geneva Lynch, of Jamestown is the guest of Mrs. Linn Hoppess.

Mrs. W. W. Westerfield is spending the day in Chillicothe.

Miss Ada Dawson, of Springfield, is the guest of Mrs. Warren Hicks.

Mrs. Tom Sites underwent an operation for appendicitis Wednesday afternoon at the Hodson Hospital. The attending physician, Dr. L. M. McFadden, called Dr. Sherman Leach from Columbus for the operation.

Prominent Young Farmer Probably Fatally Injured

Mr. Beryl Cavinee, aged 30, son of Mr. Isaac Cavinee and a son-in-law of Mr. Ed. Seibern of the Snow Hill pike, was struck by lightning while near Crooksville, Perry county, Wednesday evening, and perhaps fatally injured. F. C. Moore, a farmer of that community was also rendered unconscious by the same bolt and may not recover.

Mr. Cavinee and Moore were out in a field during a storm, and the bolt struck a tree near them; and part of the bolt apparently divided and a portion of it struck the two men. Both were picked up unconscious and Mr. Cavinee remained unconscious all night and Thursday morning was somewhat better, with a fair chance of recovery.

He had gone to Perry county to purchase live stock, and was engaged in this work when injured. He lives on the Bogus road east of this city, and is a hustling young farmer with many friends.

Upon receiving the news of the tragedy, Mrs. Cavinee and Mr. Isaac Cavinee were driven to the injured man's bedside, by Mr. Ben Jamison, arriving late in the night.

Miss Jean Shultz, of St. Louis, Mo., is the guest of Miss Edna Fenner.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Sorrell have returned from a three weeks' visit at Waverly.

Mr. and Mrs. John Conard of Hillsboro, are spending the day with Mr. and Mrs. Newton Chaney.

Mr. Jess Blackmore made a business trip to Springfield yesterday. His daughter, Romaine, accompanied him.

Miss Helen Glascock has returned from an outing trip to Lakeside. Miss Ethel Calvert, who accompanied her, remained at the resort.

Mrs. J. A. Shoop, of Chicago, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Rebecca Perrill, Supt. Shoop and sons will join her in a short time.

Mrs. Ella Cross and daughter, who have been the guests of Mrs. Ruth Brownell and daughter, Miss Lucy, left yesterday for their home at Hoosac Falls, N. Y.

Mrs. Sue Aruzzy came up from Bainbridge last evening to accompany her sister, Mrs. Rebecca Perrill, to Franklin Park, Columbus, today to attend the Chennithworth reunion.

Mrs. Claude Saxton, of Richmond, Ind., and daughter, Miss Jane Saxton leave in the morning for Toledo, to be the guest of Mrs. Clarence Sapp. They will also make side trips to various lake resorts.

Mrs. Bertha Arthur and son, Edwin, of Wilmington, Mrs. Faucett, of Gloucester, O., Mrs. Arthur and Miss Madeline Arthur of New Vienna, are the guests of Mrs. W. B. Rogers. Mrs. Arthur has severed her connection with the Wilmington College.

Mrs. Lizzie Gates was operated on by Dr. Sherman Leach, of Columbus, at the Hodson Hospital last night. The operation was a very serious one and Mrs. Gates is thought to be doing as well as possible. Dr. C. C. Hazzard was the attending physician.

Two British Peeresses In An Elizabethan Pageant

An interesting incident of the exhibition, "Shakespeare's England," at Earl's Court, London, was the Elizabethan pageant in which appeared many of the members of the British aristocracy. The Duke of Marlborough and the Earl of Craven, for instance, mounted and in full armor, were opponents in the tournament, which was the principal feature of the pageant. Many titled women took part in the pageant, wearing the same costumes as at the Shakespeare ball, which was a glittering spectacle. Among these were the two who figured in the illustration—the Duchess of Westminster and Lady Grosvenor. American peeresses in evidence at the tournament and ball were the Countesses of Craven and Stafford (formerly Miss Cornelia Martin and Mrs. Samuel Colgate) and Lady Naylor Leyland (formerly Miss Jennie Chamberlain). Several wealthy Americans who have not achieved titles occupied seats which cost them $50 (10 guineas) each. Mrs. George Cornwallis-West (formerly Miss Jennie Jerome of New York), who originated and promoted "Shakespeare's England," has planned a similar exhibition and tournament on this side of the Atlantic.

ENJOYABLE DAY SPENT AT ANNUAL FIELD DAY

While the weather man did not smile all day on the annual Picnic and Field day of the Bloomingburg Knights of Pythias Wednesday, a very enjoyable day resulted, and a crowd of some 2,000 persons were in attendance.

The picnic was again held at the beautiful natural grove on the Rogers farm three miles north of Bloomingburg, and all events on the program from the ball games to the balloon ascension took place.

The field events were highly interesting, and created no end of amusement and entertainment. In the morning the White Oak ball team and a picked team under the title of Bloomingburg, afforded entertainment, and the game was called off in the 7th inning when the score stood 14 to 8 in favor of the Bloomingburg players.

In the afternoon, following the rain, Bloomingburg defeated Sedalia 15 to 6.

An event which was not down on the program took place when a negro who was playing the ball-dodging game was knocked out of the canvas by a well directed ball thrown by Alva Slagle, a base ball pitcher. The fellow was rendered unconscious from a slight concussion of the brain and remained in an unconscious condition for sometime. His condition is said to be not serious. He was from Tennessee and it was the first time that he ever was knocked out of his place in the canvas.

The picnic was not as big a success financially as last year.

er. Popo has a really splendid crater, about half a mile across and one thousand feet deep. The walls are generally vertical, but in one or two places it is possible to descend. When workers are engaged in collecting sulphur, machinery is used to hoist them up and down. From Popo's summit there is a glorious prospect, not alone of the immense crater, but of the beautiful "White Lady," Itzacibuatl, reclining a thousand feet below; of Orizaba on the far horizon, and of the charming valley of Mexico.—Annie B. Peck in "The Christian Herald."

Opaque Windows.

The building contractor let loose some of his most emphatic phrases when he found that the man who had been hired to daub whitening all over the windows had not half done the job.

"That man doesn't seem to understand what the windows in a half-finished building are whitened for," he said. "We don't plaster them over with chalk to prevent the public from seeing the unfinished condition of the interior, but to keep the workmen from battering out the glass. Transparent glass looks just about as transparent as air to the man who is moving a wooden or iron beam. In a hurry, and he is likely to ram the end of it through an expensive window, but when the glass is coated with white it becomes visible, and the workmen hand their material in through the door."

Court and Main Sts. UP STAIRS

The younger society of Washington C. H. was indebted to the Tau Mu Tau sorority for one of the most brilliant affairs of the season, last night, when twenty couples were entertained at the home of Miss Constance Ballard. The guests were confined strictly to the Tau Mu Tau and their guests and escorts. The club girls were in charge, and together with Miss Ballard's hospitality, it was a most enjoyable affair and one not to be forgotten soon.

The wide porch was decorated in Japanese lanterns and blackeyed Susans, the club flower, while clusters of pink gladioli formed decoration in the house. The merry company spent the time in music, games and dancing until the wee small hours.

Refreshing punch was served during the evening and later a delicious luncheon, Mrs. A. S. Ballard assisting.

The out-of-town guests included Misses Doris Knight, of Columbus, Arline Beale and Mary Lutz, of Mt. Sterling, Audna Gallimore and Mary Austin, of Wilmington, and Reppa Furry, of Springfield.

First Rook to Talk.

In New street, Horsham, England, says a writer in the May Strand, there is to be seen the very exceptional and interesting spectacle of a talking rook. The bird is the property of two school children, a little girl and boy, who caught it five years ago, when it was quite a baby, in a local rookery. It is of the gentler sex, and occupies a small pen in a tiny back garden. No attempt has ever been made to teach the rook to talk, and yet she has a vocabulary of close upon 100 simple words. She is often allowed out in the garden, for, although she can fly swiftly and strongly, she can be trusted not to make her escape. It is said that this is the first instance of a rook developing the power to talk.

Just Like the Bible.

Niles, who is 10 years old, has a weakness for attending the circus, and he willingly goes to church with his mother when the circus season approaches and doesn't hesitate to point to his Sabbath rectitude as one of the reasons why he should be permitted to go to the circus.

When the circus came this week he filed his regular petition for permission to attend.

"You have seen the circus three times, Niles," said his mother, "and I don't believe you need to see it again."

"Well, mother," he answered, "I think a circus is a lot like the Bible; you can't get too much of it."

The afternoon performance found Niles and his mother looking on.

"What do you think? After that naughty Miss Prig had sent word to some visitors she was not at home, they walked in anyhow and found her in."

"So at last they found her out!"

"Not Always to the Swift."

PILES DISAPPEAR.

So Does Eczema, Salt Rheum, Ulcers, Old Sores and Carbuncles.

Under the influence of San Cura Ointment surprising cures are made so quickly that they seem like miracles.

Stubborn cases of piles like those of Rev. W. F. Gilbert of Titusville, Pa., vanish before the marvelous antiseptic Ointment. Mr. Gilbert writes:

"For twenty years I suffered with bleeding and itching piles; at times I was confined to the house for more than a month. Two years ago I began using San Cura Ointment and one 50c jar made a firm and permanent cure. I have not been troubled since."

San Cura Ointment is guaranteed by Brown's Drug Store, who is the agent in Washington C. H., Ohio, to cure any of the above named diseases or money back. It instantly kills all pain from burns, cuts and bruises, draws out the poison and heals in a short time. 25 cents and 50 cents a jar at Brown's Drug Store.

GOOD BABY SOAP.

San Cura is a healing and antiseptic soap; just the soothing kind that baby needs. It frees the pores from all impurities and prevents fevers, rashes and other infantile diseases. Best for anyone's skin, cures pimples and blackheads, cleans the complexion. 25 cents a large cake at Brown's Drug Store.

NEVER FELT LONESOME

AUNT CYNTHY HAD MANY WAYS OF PASSING THE TIME.

Her Five "Chillens" All Where She Could Watch Them, and Yellow Ike Showing Up for His Meals With Regularity.

A young woman who never had visited the south recently spent some weeks there. She was driving along a country road when she passed a ramshackle cabin, and was hailed by an ancient colored woman, with garments hanging in rags upon her withered frame.

"Mornin', missy!" the old mammy called out. "Ef you got any ole clo'es or hats or shoes or medicine you don't keer much about, will you please, ma'am, give 'em to Aunt Cynthia?"

The New York girl looked about with growing pity. "How do you get along?" she asked.

"Oh, I gits along all right. I picks a few berries an' I dries a few apples an' I raises a few chickens. Ain't any nigger in dis county got as many friends 'mongst de white people as Aunt Cynthia. Dey sholy is good to me."

"Do you live here all alone?"

"Wal, no, not what you kin call alone by myself eggzactly. You see, I got five chillen." The girl cast a glance around the desolate place, and the old woman followed and read the searching look. "Dey's in de graveyard," she explained. "Dey's all dead, but de graveyard's bein' my do', right whar I kin keep watchin'."

"Where's your husband?"

Aunt Cynthia gave her head a coquettish toss. "He done run off to de war fifty years ago," she answered.

"And never came back?"

"Sholy he done come back. Yas'm, he done been back mos' as long as he been gone. But he brung another wife wid him an' I tole him flat dey can't live in Cynthia's house. He run up a kind o' shack, an' mighty soon he druv dat other 'oman away, an' now he got his number fo'."

"And you've been alone all this time?"

"Wal'm, not precisely what you kin call alone. You see, while my ole man was run off to de war I done got married to Yellow Ike, an' he's mos' all de time settin' 'round somewhere so's I kin call him. Dar he come now, wid a mouth open ready for dinner. When you gives out ole duds, you won't forgit Aunt Cynthia, will you, honey?"

The Folly of Betting.

William H. Trembley, the swimming hero of Funston's regiment in the Philippines, visited New Orleans with a friend while city clerk of Kansas City, Kan. Walking down Dauphine street one morning the friend was boasting how he would bankrupt the bookmakers. Looking up from the paper he was reading Trembley saw a boulevard ahead marked "Oleander Way."

"You bet the races," he exclaimed. "Why, I'll bet you $10 you can't guess the name of that street yonder."

The friend looked ahead and saw the sign. "I'll take you, even money," he said. "It's Oleander way, you rummy, there's the sign."

"So it is," said Trembley, "but you oughtn't to believe in signs. Look here."

Trembley, being a city clerk, naturally was attracted by a column story of the proceedings of the New Orleans council on the night before. Right in the lead paragraph he showed his friend the tragic evidence—the passage of an ordinance changing the name of Oleander way to Jackson boulevard.—Kansas City Star.

Pertinent Question.

Speaking of common sense, Dr. Faulkner head of the Vineland (N. J.) hospital, told the following story:

A mysterious building had been erected on the outskirts of a small town. It was shrouded in mystery. All that was known about it was that it was a chemical laboratory. An old farmer driving past the place after work had been started, and, seeing a man in the doorway, called to him: "What be ye doin' in this place?"

"We are searching for a universal solvent, something that will dissolve all things," said the chemist.

"What good will that be?"

"Imagine, sir! It will dissolve all things. If we want a solution of iron, glass, gold, anything, all that we have to do is to drop it in this solution."

"Fine," said the farmer, "fine! What be ye goin' to keep it in?"—Everybody's Magazine.

Negro Music.

But if proof positive of a soul in the negro people should be demanded, it can be given, for they have brought over from Africa and developed in this country, even under all the unfavorable conditions of slavery, a music so wonderful, so beautiful, and yet so strange, that, like the gypsy music of Hungary, it is at once the admiration and despair of educated musicians of our race. Unique and inimitable, it is the only music of this country, except that of the Indian, which can claim to be folk music. In it the negroes pour out their joys and their sorrows in naive but wonderfully moving fashion; and in the face of such testimony of emotional and ethical beauty who dare deny them wider future possibilities in the great work of liberation of mind and soul which is now going on?—Walter Damrosch in Southern Workman.

Old-Time Market Days.

"Market-day," for ages an institution in England, still exists in certain localities, and may still be studied with interest by the tourist who visits Halifax, Nova Scotia, or Charlotte-tower, Prince Edward Island, where large enclosures and roomy market-houses are maintained for the benefit of the country people, and such citizens as have established a regular market business. Everything from live stock to a bouquet of flowers may be brought here for sale, the owner being allotted a suitable place and charged a small fee for his accommodation, and while most of the market people are far from being especially rustic in their dress or speech, the variety, and sometimes the peculiarity of their offerings still suggest the important part which the English market and its legal control played in the local and business life of three centuries ago.—"Nobility of the Trades—The Farmer," Charles Winslow Hall, in National Magazine.

Origin of English Royal Academy.

The yearly "show" of works by living artists which is held at the English Royal Academy from the first Monday in May to the first Monday in August owes its existence to a meeting of painters which was held at the Turk's Head, Soho, on November 12, 1759. The knights of the brush and palette resolved that "once a year, on a day in the second week in April, at a place that should be appointed by a committee for carrying the design into execution, to be chosen annually, every painter, sculptor, engraver, chaser, seal-cutter, and medallist may exhibit their several performances." It was also resolved that "the sum of one shilling be taken daily of each person who may come to visit the said performances."—"The Royal Academy," Oscar Frichet, in National Magazine.

Passenger's "Lucky Escape."

A traveler in one of the London tubes attempted to board a train after it had started and the gates were closed. He got his feet under the gate and hung on until the train ran into the tunnel. Here he was knocked off, and but for the prompt action of the engineer he would have had both legs cut off. He wrote a letter of complaint to the company, whereupon they had him "summoned" for breaking one of its regulations, and the court fined him $2.50 and costs, which amounted to $3.10. The item describing the case in the London Times was labeled "A Lucky Escape." Evidently from a heavier fine.—New York Press.

IN A WINTER LAND

Norway's Iron and Locked Fjords and Dazzling Glaciers.

Seas Abound With Cod; Line Can Be Dropped in Fifty Fathoms of Water and Will Not Touch Bottom, Owing to Fish.

Copenhagen, Norway.—A commission to investigate iron ores and their mining and reduction in certain parts of northern Europe found me on a bleak November day aboard the trim little steel ship Astrea, a post steamer of the Bergenske Dampskifffelskab.

The journey up the coast was a most interesting one. The ship coasted the frowning and glazier planed rocks of what is, literally, an ironbound land, for the rocks of Norwegian mountains for a distance of more than five hundred miles north and east from latitude 66 contain a considerable proportion of iron mineral; it is true that in most places this is too lean to be now available for commercial use, but its totals are staggering to the imagination. With abundant water power at hand, and with water transport in all the markets of the globe, who will have the hardihood to say that some time these deposits may not be made use of? We passed the mouths of fjords cut deep into the interior; glaciers, brilliant in the sun, stretching their widths across the distance. We saw the Norwegian codfishing industry, by which no less than fifty million cod are annually taken; and, at Svalvaer, we met hundreds of vessels of the fishing fleets. These seas off the Lofoten islands swarm with cod, and Baedeker says that at times and places hereabouts a line thrown into 50 fathoms of water will not reach bottom for the backs of the fish.

It is the sea that supports northern Norway; without its harvest life would be impossible, and the government so fully recognizes this fact that it has established complete telegraph and telephone communication between the Lofotens and the mainland and upon many of the outlying islands has wireless stations for communication between the fleets and the shore. Svalvaer is a town of two or three thousand fisher folk, but it has its water mains, its electric lights, its sewers, its cables and its well stocked shops. We passed Narvik, the most northerly railway terminus in the world, and threaded the island passages to Hammerfest.

At Vadsø the next morning I changed to the local steamer Veranger, and spent the day crossing the great fjord of that name. The cabin was a mile of a hole well aft, and crowded by women and babies; the deck was unprotected, and the wind was bitterly cold and raw. How well I remember that I spent the day alternately freezing in the lee of the pilothouse and thawing under the shelter of the smokestack! And there had been no opportunity for a meal between a supper on the Astrea the night before and another that evening, when I sat down in the chilly room of the hotel at Kirkenes—which is Sydvaranger.—Dwight E. Woodbridge, in Engineering Magazine.

SAVINGS TIED UP 30 YEARS

Old Housekeeper's Long Effort to Regain $1,100 From Priest's Estate.

Trenton, N. J.—An effort is being made by Mrs. Katherine Logue of this city to recover $1,100 from the estate of the late Rev. Father Missle of Basking Ridge. Mrs. Logue was the housekeeper for the priest and entrusted her savings to him thirty years ago. She was suddenly called to Ireland and before she returned the priest died.

The money passed into the hands of the executors and for years Mrs. Logue has been trying to get possession of it, but she has no evidence that she gave it to the priest. Monsignor John H. Fox has now taken up the woman's case and will make an effort to get the money.

Negro Lad's "Fowl" Plot.

Springfield, Mass.—A negro boy has discovered an unflattering method for securing a chicken to grace the Sunday dinner board. His scheme is to break an egg, stolen from the hen house, over the chicken's head and then tell his mother he caught the fowl eating eggs. That settles it.

TO MAKE TABLE CLOTHS LAST.

Table linen is expensive. It costs more today than it did five years ago. When it begins to wear in holes, to come from the wash with worn spots that tell how soon it will be no good, no wonder the housewife despairs. Cheap, common soap full of caustic that eat the linen are greatly to blame. Easy Task laundry soap is an enemy to dirt and stains and a friend to the table linen. Get two five cent cakes; try it, and if it does not surprise and satisfy you the makers will return your money.

TOUCHED TENDER SPOT

APPEAL IN HEN'S EYES TOO MUCH FOR "NIMROD."

Consequently Destructive Bird, Held in Honor as a Gift, Continues to Make Barren Waste of Doctor's Garden.

One of the doctor's patients is an Italian who speaks English imperfectly, and is, besides, very poor. The doctor became interested in him at a hospital clinic, where he treated him for some time. When quite restored to health, the Italian, full of gratitude and affection, desired to make some return for the kindness that had been shown him, and after much consideration decided to present his benefactor with one of his most valuable assets, a large white hen which he was fattening with a view to a feast for himself and family later on. So one morning he arrived at the doctor's office with this offering in his arms and sat humbly waiting his turn among the other patients.

"Well, Joseph, is your hen sick?" asked the doctor jocosely, when Joseph finally was shown into the private sanctum.

"Seek-a!" exclaimed Joseph. "No, ser, heem-a no seek-a. I brought-a heem to you. I want ge-a heem to you. You make-a me well. You treat-a me kind. I ge-a you de cheek. I have-a no more. I like-a you, please take-a," and with tears of emotion in his eyes he thrust the struggling, squawking fowl into the hands of the physician, who, being a most tender-hearted mortal, could not refuse a gift he knew was offered in a spirit of sincere devotion.

A few days later the doctor's brother, whose prowess as a hunter of big and little game had won for him among his friends the nickname of "Nimrod," was visiting the doctor, and, happening to look out of the sanctum window into the yard, observed the hen contentedly scratching up a bed of geraniums, the last bit of vegetation her active claws had left untouched in the inclosure.

"Hello, Doc! Since when have you gone into the poultry business?" said he.

Then the doctor explained. "The deuce of it is," he concluded ruefully, "that the activities of that miserable bird have kept my yard looking like a barren waste."

"Kill her, why don't you?" said Nimrod. "Cut off her head."

"Oh," said the man of lancets and probes and surgical knives, "I couldn't do it; not in cold blood. Nimrod—not in cold blood."

"Pooh," returned Nimrod, "let me do it for you then. Just a clip on the side of the head and it's over."

"All right, my boy, go and do it," said the brother. So the doctor closed the window and drew down the shade and Nimrod departed on his murderous errand. Twenty minutes later he returned.

"Well?" queried the doctor, looking up from his writing, "is it done?"

"No," replied Nimrod.

"Not done!" said the doctor. "And why not?"

"Why, the darned bird looked at me with its round, silly eyes and I couldn't do it," confessed Nimrod, with a deprecating smile.

So Joseph's gift still clucks and scratches contentedly and the doctor's yard continues to look like a barren waste.—New York Press.

His Standing.

"I suppose your boy at college will be home pretty soon?"

"Oh, yes, we had a letter from him today. He's awfully proud of his standing."

"Somewhere near the head of his class, eh?"

Aquariums, Museums and Tourists Buy the Young Ones—Many Articles Are Made From the Hides, Teeth, and Bones.

Alligator farming is a business that is far from overcrowded and the few enterprising men who have taken it up in the last few years have practically all found their farms to be paying institutions almost from the start, according to a writer in the Scientific American. Although the supply of wild alligators is being reduced to an alarming extent, raising alligators for their skins alone can not be seriously considered until the wild supply is much smaller than it is now. As it takes several hundred years for alligators to attain their full growth, it might seem that returns would rather slow. However, baby alligators are always in good demand from aquariums, museums and tourists, and from their sale and the fees of admission to the farms the chief present revenue is derived. The skins, too, begin to become valuable when the alligator is six or seven years old.

Until 19 or 20 years ago, no alligator skins were used for any purpose, and for several years after that only the smooth portion which was found on the stomach was utilized. Now the back or horny portion is regarded as the most valuable, and not only is the hide of the alligator used, but his teeth and bones also contribute to various articles from suit cases to paper knives and whistles. In the Florida Everglades several hundred persons, mostly Seminole Indians, make their living by alligator hunting. The Florida supply is rapidly diminishing and in the last two years Mexico and Central America along the gulf have been invaded. Extirpation seems likely unless drastic measures for protection are taken.

One of the most widely known alligator farms is at Palm Beach, Fla., at which a collection of over 1,000 saurians is kept, ranging from tiny ones just hatched to Jumbo Joe, supposed to be 900 years old, measuring 18 feet 4 inches. In this collection is also a crocodile, the largest in captivity, estimated to be 2,000 years old. It is 17 feet 7 inches long. The largest collection of alligators is at Los Angeles, Cal., on a farm owned by S. V. Ernest, on which there are over 2,000 alligators. The largest, caught only a few months ago in the Everglades in Florida, is 15 feet long and weighs about 900 pounds.

A large female alligator lays from 50 to 60 eggs every summer, and a small one from 25 to 30, and practically every egg will hatch. Special incubators for them are used at the farms. Alligators require no food from September to May. The rest of the time they eat meat. Baby alligators up to three years of age, at which time they will not exceed 18 inches in length, find the readiest market and are sold at from one to four dollars. Larger ones are usually sold at practically as much a foot, a 16-foot alligator bringing as much as $20, and the very large ones from 15 to 19 feet long, which are desired mainly for aquariums, from $75 to $100.

First Rock to Talk.

In New street, Horsham, England, says a writer in the May Strand, there is to be seen the very exceptional and interesting spectacle of a talking rock. The rock is the property of two school children, a little girl and boy, who caught it five years ago, when it was quite a baby, in a local rookery. It is of the gentler sex, and occupies a small pen in a tiny back garden. No attempt has ever been made to teach the rock to talk, and yet she has a vocabulary of close upon 100 simple words. She is often allowed out in the garden, for, although she can fly swiftly and strongly, she can be trusted not to make her escape. It is said that this is the first instance of a rock developing the power to talk.

Just Like the Bible.

Niles, who is 10 years old, has a weakness for attending the circus, and he willingly goes to church with his mother when the circus season approaches and doesn't hesitate to point to his Sabbath rectitude as one of the reasons why he should be permitted to go to the circus.

When the circus came this week he filed his regular petition for permission to attend.

"You have seen the circus three times, Niles," said his mother, "and I don't believe you need to see it again."

"Well, mother," he answered, "I think a circus is a lot like the Bible; you can't get too much of it."

The afternoon performance found Niles and his mother looking on.

"What do you think? After that naughty Miss Prig had sent word to some visitors she was not at home, they walked in anyhow and found her in."

"So at last they found her out!"

Not Always to the Swift.

Redd—So he beat you in the chess game?

Greene—Oh, yes; I wasn't slow enough.

PILES DISAPPEAR.

So Does Eczema, Salt Rheum, Ulcers, Old Sores and Carbuncles.

Under the influence of San Cura Ointment surprising cures are made so quickly that they seem like miracles.

Stubborn cases of piles like those of Rev. W. F. Gilbert of Titusville, Pa., vanish before the marvelous antiseptic Ointment. Mr. Gilbert writes:

"For twenty years I suffered with bleeding and itching piles; at times I was confined to the house for more than a month. Two years ago I began using San Cura Ointment and one 50c jar made a firm and permanent cure. I have not been troubled since."

San Cura Ointment is guaranteed by Brown's Drug Store, who is the agent in Washington C. H., Ohio, to cure any of the above named diseases or money back. It instantly kills all pain from burns, cuts and bruises, draws out the poison and heals in a short time. 25 cents and 50 cents a jar at Brown's Drug Store.

GOOD BABY SOAP.

San Cura is a neutral and antiseptic soap; just the soothing kind that baby needs. It frees the pores from all impurities and prevents fevers, rashes and other infantile diseases. Best for anyone's skin, cures pimples and blackheads, cleans the complexion. 25 cents a large cake at Brown's Drug Store.

NEVER FELT LONESOME

AUNT CYNTHY HAD MANY WAYS OF PASSING THE TIME.

Her Five "Chillies" All Where She Could Watch Them, and Yellow Ike Showing Up for His Meals With Regularity.

A young woman who never had visited the south recently spent some weeks there. She was driving along a country road when she passed a ramshackle cabin, and was hailed by an ancient colored woman, with garments hanging in rags upon her withered frame.

"Mornin', missy!" the old mammy called out. "Ef you got any ole clo'es or hats or shoes or medicine you don't keer much about, will you please, ma'am, give 'em to Aunt Cynthia?"

The New York girl looked about with growing pity. "How do you get along?" she asked.

"Oh, I gits along all right. I picks a few berries an' I dries a few apples an' I raises a few chickens. Ain't any nigger in dis county got as many friends 'mongst de white people as Aunt Cynthia. Dey sholy is good to me."

"Do you live here all alone?"

"Wal, no, not what you kin call alone by myself eggactly. You see, I got five chillies. The girl cast a glance around the desolate place, and the old woman followed and read the searching look. "Dey's in de graveyard," she explained. "Dey's all dead, but de graveyard's beln' my do', right whar I kin keep watchin'."

"Where's your husband?"

Aunt Cynthia gave her head a coquettish toss. "He done run off to de war fifty years ago," she answered.

"And never come back?"

"Sholy he done come back. Yaw'm, he done been back mos' as long as he been gone. But he brung another wife wid him an' I tole him flat dey can't live in Cynthia's house. He run up a kind o' shack, an' mighty soon he druv dat other 'oman away, an' now he got his number to."

"And you've been alone all this time?"

"Wal'm, not precisely what you kin call alone. You see, while my ole man was run off to de war I done got married to Yellow Ike, an' he's mos' all de time settin' 'round somewhere so's I kin call him. Dar he come now, wid a mouth open ready for dinner. When you gives out ole duds, you won't forgit Aunt Cynthia, will you, honey?"

The Folly of Betting.

William B. Trembley, the swimming hero of Funston's regiment in the Philippines, visited New Orleans with a friend while city clerk of Kansas City, Kan. Walking down Dauphine street one morning the friend was boasting how he would bankrupt the bookmakers. Looking up from the paper he was reading Trembley saw a boulevard ahead marked "Oleander Way."

"You bet the races," he exclaimed. "Why, I'll bet you $10 you can't guess the name of that street yonder."

The friend looked ahead and saw the sign. "I'll take you, even money," he said. "It's Oleander way, you rummy, there's the sign."

"So it is," said Trembley, "but you oughtn't to believe in signs. Look here."

Trembley, being a city clerk, naturally was attracted by a column story of the proceedings of the New Orleans council on the night before. Right in the lead paragraph he showed his friend the tragic evidence—the passage of an ordinance changing the name of Oleander way to Jackson boulevard.—Kansas City Star.

Pertinent Question.

Speaking of common sense, Dr. Faulkner head of the Vineland (N. J.) hospital, told the following story:

A mysterious building had been erected on the outskirts of a small town. It was shrouded in mystery. All that was known about it was that it was a chemical laboratory. An old farmer driving past the place after work had been started, and, seeing a man in the doorway, called to him: "What be ye doin' in this place?"

"We are searching for a universal solvent, something that will dissolve all things," said the chemist.

"What good will that be?"

"Imagine, sir! It will dissolve all things. If we want a solution of iron, glass, gold, anything, all that we have to do is to drop it in this solution."

"Fine," said the farmer. "Fine! What be ye goin' to keep it in?"—Everybody's Magazine.

Negro Music.

But if proof positive of a soul in the negro people should be demanded, it can be given, for they have brought over from Africa and developed in this country, even under all the unfavorable conditions of slavery, a music so wonderful, so beautiful, and yet so strange, that, like the gypsy music of Hungary, it is at once the admiration and despair of educated musicians of our race. Unique and inimitable, it is the only music of this country, except that of the Indian, which can claim to be folk music. In it the negroes pour out their joys and their sorrows in naive but wonderfully moving fashion; and in the face of such testimony of emotional and ethical beauty who dare deny them wider future possibilities in the great work of liberation of mind and soul which is now going on?—Walter Damrosch in Southern Workman.

Old-Time Market Days.

"Market-day," for ages an institution in England, still exists in certain localities, and may still be studied with interest by the tourist who visits Halifax, Nova Scotia, or Charlotte-tower, Prince Edward Island, where large enclosures and roomy market-houses are maintained for the benefit of the country people, and such citizens as have established a regular market business. Everything from live stock to a bouquet of flowers may be brought here for sale, the owner being allotted a suitable place and charged a small fee for his accommodation, and while most of the market-people are far from being especially rustic in their dress or speech, the variety, and sometimes the peculiarity of their offerings still suggest the important part which the English market and its legal control played in the local and business life of three centuries ago—"Nobility of the Trades—The Farmer," Charles Winslow Hall, in National Magazine.

Origin of English Royal Academy.

The yearly "show" of works by living artists which is held at the English Royal Academy from the first Monday in May to the first Monday in August owes its existence to a meeting of painters which was held at the Turk's Head, Soho, on November 12, 1759. The knights of the brush and palette resolved that "once a year, on a day in the second week in April, at a place that should be appointed by a committee for carrying the design into execution, to be chosen annually, every painter, sculptor, engraver, chaser, seal-cutter, and medallist may exhibit their several performances." It was also resolved that "the sum of one shilling be taken daily of each person who may come to visit the said performances."—"The Royal Academy," Oscar Frichet, in National Magazine.

Passenger's "Lucky Escape."

A traveler in one of the London tubes attempted to board a train after it had started and the gates were closed. He got his feet under the gate and hung on until the train ran into the tunnel. Here he was knocked off, and but for the prompt action of the engineer he would have had both legs cut off. He wrote a letter of complaint to the company, whereupon they had him "summoned" for breaking one of its regulations, and the court fined him $2.50 and costs, which amounted to $3.10. The item describing the case in the London Times was labeled "A Lucky Escape." Evidently from a heavier fine.—New York Press.

Appropriate Names.

In upper Third avenue E. Bunn has a bakery. In Columbus avenue is Miss Stich, women's lingerie. A dealer in window glass has a name which may be read either way and it will be the same: Leon Noel. In Boston avenue is a surgeon dentist, Dr. Morg.—New York Press.

Combine to Fight Pine Beetle.

A number of associations have been formed in the south to combat the pine beetle.

Along life's way he sadly pokes
And very seldom laughs.
His business is writing jokes—
You'd think 'twas epigrams.

INDIAN KILLED ON TRACK.

Near Rochelle, Ill., an Indian went to sleep on a railroad track and was killed by the fast express. He paid for his carelessness with his life. Often its that way when people neglect coughs and colds. Don't risk your life when prompt use of Dr. King's New Discovery will cure them and so prevent a dangerous throat or lung trouble. "It completely cured me, in a short time, of a terrible cough that followed a severe attack of Grip," writes J. R. Watts, Floydada, Tex., "and I regained 15 pounds in weight that I had lost." Quick, safe reliable and guaranteed. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at Blackmer and Tanquary.

IN A WINTER LAND

Norway's Iron and Locked Fjords and Dazzling Glaciers.

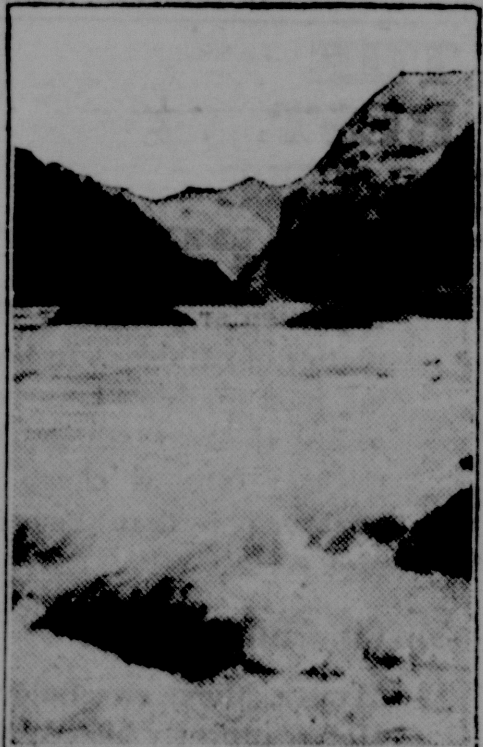

Seas Abound With Cod; Line Can Be Dropped in Fifty Fathoms of Water and Will Not Touch Bottom, Owing to Fish.

Copenhagen, Norway.—A commission to investigate iron ores and their mining and reduction in certain parts of northern Europe found me on a bleak November day aboard the trim little steel ship Astrea, a post steamer of the Bergenske Dampskiffseelskab.

The journey up the coast was a most interesting one. The ship coasted the frowning and glacier planed rocks of what is, literally, an ironbound land, for the rocks of Norwegian mountains for a distance of more than five hundred miles north and east from latitude 66 contain a considerable proportion of iron mineral; it is true that in most places this is too lean to be now available for commercial use, but its totals are staggering to the imagination. With abundant water power at hand, and with water transport in all the markets of the globe, who will have the hardihood to say that some time these deposits may not be made use of? We passed the mouths of fjords cut deep into the interior; glaciers, brilliant in the sun, stretching their widths across the distance. We saw the Norwegian codfishing industry, by which no less than fifty million cod are annually taken; and, at Svolvær, we met hundreds of vessels of the fishing fleets. These seas off the Lofoten Islands swarm with cod, and Baedeker says that at times and places hereabouts a line thrown into 50 fathoms of water will not reach bottom for the backs of the fish.

It is the sea that supports northern Norway; without its harvest life would be impossible, and the government so fully recognizes this fact that it has established complete telegraph and telephone communication between the Lofotens and the mainland and upon many of the outlying islands has wireless stations for communication between the fleets and the shore. Svolvær is a town of two or three thousand fisher folk, but it has its water mains, its electric lights, its sewers, its cables and its well stocked shops. We passed Narvik, the most northerly railway terminus in the world, and threaded the island passages to Hammerfest.

At Vadso the next morning I changed to the local steamer Veranger, and spent the day crossing the great fjord of that name. The cabin was a mile of a hole well aft, and crowded by women and babies; the deck was unprotected, and the wind was bitterly cold and raw. How well I remember that I spent the day alternately freezing in the lee of the pilothouse and thawing under the shelter of the smokestack! And there had been no opportunity for a meal between a supper on the Astrea the night before and another that evening, when I sat down in the chilly room of the hotel at Kirkenes—which is Sydvaranger—Dwight E. Woodbridge, in Engineering Magazine.

Lake Leon, Norway.

Savings Tied Up 30 Years

Old Housekeeper's Long Effort to Regain $1,100 From Priest's Estate.

Trenton, N. J.—An effort is being made by Mrs. Katherine Logue of this city to recover $1,100 from the estate of the late Rev. Father Missile of Basking Ridge. Mrs. Logue was the housekeeper for the priest and entrusted her savings to him thirty years ago. She was suddenly called to Ireland and before she returned the priest died.

The money passed into the hands of the executors and for years Mrs. Logue has been trying to get possession of it, but she has no evidence that she gave it to the priest. Monsignor John H. Fox has now taken up the woman's case and will make an effort to get the money.

Negro Lad's "Fowl" Plot.

Springfield, Mass.—A negro boy has discovered an unflinching method for securing a chicken to grace the Sunday dinner board. His scheme is to break an egg, stolen from the hen house, over the chicken's head and then tell his mother he caught the fowl eating eggs. That settles it.

PLANS RAPIDLY MATURING FOR FAYETTE COUNTY FAIR

Full Line of Exhibits and Top Midway Attractions—Four Days of Racing and Four Days of Fair—New Attractions Now Being Secured Every Day, and Even the Weatherman Has Promised to Be Good.

Everybody is looking forward to next week—the week of the Fayette County Fair, and the interest shown by the citizens of Fayette county is gratifying. The line of exhibits will be exceptionally full and complete, and the midway attractions will undoubtedly surpass anything the fair has had for years.

Tuesday will be one of the most interesting and entertaining days of the Fayette County Fair.

The Experimental Station and the Blind Institute Exhibits will be in place and ready to extend a cordial welcome and show what they have. The racing program promises to be unusually good and exciting.

The manner of conducting the Matinee Pace and Trot will introduce a novel never before attempted at a county fair and no doubt will cause a great deal of amusement as well as excitement.

Inasmuch as the Company is endeavoring to establish the practice of holding four days Fair rather than one lasting but three days the citizens of the county and the city are especially urged to assist in making it worth while for the Company to continue the practice and this can be done by giving the Fair liberal patronage on that day.

The usual admission fee will be charged and those attending will be sure to get their money's worth.

Wednesday will be observed as "Old Soldiers' Day" and a cordial welcome will be extended to all the veterans of the Civil War residing in the county.

Thursday promises to be a record breaker in every particular as all the signs at this time point to a larger crowd than was ever on the grounds.

Friday will be especially attractive as the racing program for that afternoon will be great and in addition to the many other attractions that will be on the grounds the management has been fortunate enough to secure the presence of one of Ohio's most distinguished and popular men, Hon. James M. Cox, the Democratic nominee for Governor who will deliver a non-partisan address.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address P. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by all Druggists, etc. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

dress in the forenoon of that day. Entries for all the departments are being rapidly made, the weather man has promised to be good and we can safely predict the greatest fair in the history of the county.

Vogel's Minstrels

One of the many features to be presented by John W. Vogel's Minstrels, which appear at the Empire Opera House on Friday night of this week is the beautiful and up-to-date dancing number, entitled, "The Great Event." The idea was conceived by Manager Vogel and arranged by Barney Fagin, the world's master producer of intricate dances and terpsichorean movements. The scene is laid at the famous Sheephead Bay race course, and the prancing thoroughbreds are at the post awaiting the signal for the start, they get the word "They're off," hoof-beats are heard in the distance and immediately after the finish the jockeys appear neatly attired in the regulation colors, representing the world's famous owners and stake winners.

William Rowe, the famous and world-renowned solo clog dancer, has been engaged to rehearse and produce the act in the absence of Mr. Fagin, whose foreign engagements prevent his doing so.

FLOATED TO THE NEW SITE

Village of Provincetown Was Put on Rafts and Moved Across the Bay.

Commercial street in Provincetown had an origin in keeping with its present nautical air and appeal to the imagination. The town originally stood on the spit of sand far out across the harbor, where the light-house now is. Many years ago the government bought Provincetown, houses and all, in order to protect the harbor from the threatening sea. The Provincetownians went to the government and asked what they were going to do with the houses.

"Pull 'em down, of course," said the government.

"Can't we have 'em?" inquired the late owners.

"Sure," replied the government, "if you'll take 'em away."

"Sure!" echoed the Provincetownians. Old wreckers that they were, they applied their technique to the problems of housemoving. They bulkheaded their dwellings up, necklaced empty casks about them in the way of life-preservers, and one sunny morning the village of Provincetown, true to its maritime traditions, set sail, schoolhouse and all, and came floating gayly across the harbor to where it now stands. Near the railway track today they point out a certain store as the original seafaring school-house—Robert Haven Schuchter in the Metropolitan Magazine.

The Kind.

"So, father, a little bird told you about my delings?"

"Yes, one did."

"Then it must have been a jolly little lark, for I've been having a lot of them."

The Great Steadier.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., impressing on his Bible class the steady influence of a good wife, smiled and said: "A minister once asked a young man on a train:

"Do you smoke, sir?"

"No, sir," was the reply.

"I suppose you drink—that is to say, moderately?"

"No, sir; I abstain," answered the young man.

"Do you gamble?"

"No, sir."

"Swear?"

"No, sir."

"Young man," said the minister, with an air at once pleased and puzzled—"young man, what are you, anyway?"

"I'm married," the young man answered.

IT NEVER FAILED.

The young man who reads the papers had a choice lower berth in the Pullman.

He had noticed that day the story of the young man who had given up his lower berth to a lady several years before and was remembered in her will to the extent of $98,000.

As he entered the car he heard a woman expostulating with the conductor. There was no berth for her. As she passed the young man she dropped a bank book. The young man picked it up and quite by accident noticed that it showed a red ink balance of $50,000.

The young man gave the lady the bank book and his berth in the same sentence.

A little later the woman glanced at the book and smiled.

"It never fails to work," she murmured.

A Greek Name.

Greek may have gone out of fashion, but Greeks have not. The being who used to live for us only in the pages of ancient history is now a familiar figure in every American city.

"Mention the name of some well known Greek," said the teacher of a juvenile class in history.

"George," spoke up a curly haired little boy.

"George who?"

"I don't know the rest of his name, ma'am. He comes round to our house every Thursday with bananas and oranges."

Such a Nice Time.

Dorothy was so homesick at her first party and cried so bitterly that the hostess's mother suggested that it would be better for her to go home.

Dorothy accepted the idea, but a few minutes later, upon answering a timid ring at the door, the hostess's mother found Dorothy bathed in tears.

"Well, Dorothy, I am glad to see you again. Did you decide to come back to us?"

"No'm'm, I forgot to say I had such a nice time!"—Browning's Magazine.

Heirlooms.

"And is this an heirloom, too?" asked the visitor, picking up a brick that lay on the center table.

"Yes," said the lady of the house. "That is the brick my mother threw at the prime minister."

"Ah, indeed, how very interesting," said the visitor. "And whose portrait is that on the wall?"

"That is my mother herself," said the lady.

"I see," said the visitor. "The power behind the throw," as it were."—Harper's Weekly.

One Benefit.

To top off an expensive education a young married woman of no particular ability in any one line took a course at a dramatic school. She never attempted to secure an engagement, so one day a close and candid friend of her husband asked what good all that training had done, anyhow.

"So far as I can see," he said, "that $300 you spent on Ethel's dramatic education has been practically thrown away."

"Oh, no, it hasn't," returned the husband mildly. "Her stage experience has taught her to dress in a hurry. Nowadays when I ask her to go any place with me she can change her clothes in ten minutes. It used to take over an hour."

Trip Cost $72,000.

Madrid.—According to a letter recently discovered at Palos, Spain, it cost Columbus $72,000 to make the voyage that resulted in the discovery of America.

KEEPING THE LOOK OF YOUTH

Parisiennes Are. Probably the Most Successful in This, But Many May Achieve It.

A Russian princess who has attracted much attention in Paris this winter, and who is considered one of the best-dressed women in that city, declares that nothing ages a woman's appearance so much as the old-fashioned method of pushing the flesh up above the corset.

How few women who have passed the "dangerous" age stop to think of this, yet is it not true? The settled look that comes with middle age is enhanced by a stiff-corseted figure above the waist.

Put money into a good corset, have it fitted sitting down, and in adjusting it be sure to pull it far down and gird it firmly round the hips.

Many women find as they grow older they must have their evening gowns cut high. This need not be done if care is taken to get a corset that has a low bust.

From Paris comes another hint about youthful looks. A famous dressmaker says that real lace ages women and should never be worn near the face.

The Parisienne has learned to fight age more successfully than most women because she pays heed to details that to others seem trivial. She makes a study of line, angle and color, and who will say the results are not worth the trouble?

It is every woman's duty to keep young looking. The worst way to do it is to feign youth through cosmetics or a kittenish manner!—Cleveland Leader.

HUMAN NATURE NOT SO BAD

New York Newspaper Man Observes With Pleasure the Aid Given the Blind.

If you doubt that human nature is kind, watch the ordinary passerby in his attitude toward a blind man. The office window man was riding in a Broadway open car the other day. The car was just barely moving, owing to some blockade or other, and kept about even pace with the pedestrians who crowded the pavements in their usual daily hustle.

The eye of the Office Window casually lit upon a blind man, walking alone, with that upright tilt of the head so common to the sightless. He tapped his stick incessantly before him and moved briskly until he neared the end of each block, with its hazardous curb. The car kept pace with him for seven blocks, and upon every block some one took charge of that blind man as he came to the curb, saw him safely over and said a pleasant word in parting.

One young man stayed near him for three blocks, steering him over the crossings each time. Probably the man with the tapping stick thought the friendly guide was a different man for every block. Or does his ear become so delicately attuned to voices that he fairly sees through hearing? The Office Window man wondered if the smiles that so often light the faces of the blind come from the habit of thanking people who lend them friendly aid so many times a day?—New York Evening Mail.

Sleeping Sickness Discovery.

Reports received from the commission on Sleeping Sickness working in Rhodesia state that it has been proved beyond doubt that the tsetse fly, known as Glossina morsitans, as a carrier of the disease.

The commission was dispatched to Africa in consequence of the appearance of the disease in regions where Glossina palpalis (the species of tsetse fly, which up to that time had alone been regarded as a carrier of sleeping sickness) was non-existent. The guilt of Glossina morsitans has been proved not only under laboratory conditions, but also in nature. Certain animals can act as the host of the virus without suffering thereby.

While palpalis is to be found only in narrow limits, morsitans is met with throughout Africa in wide areas, and the methods of migration and isolation hitherto employed will be practically impossible.

Consumption From a Monkey.

A report comes from Russia that Mme. Gvosdeska, prima donna at the Imperial theater, is ill from consumption, having been infected by her pet monkey. She fondled her pet when it suffered from bronchitis. Inasmuch as the monkey is suffering from tuberculosis, the Russian doctors decided that the disease had been caught from the monkey. It is probable that consumption would last considerably longer in the woman than in the monkey, and the chances are that the poor monkey while out of sorts really caught the consumption from the prima donna, who may have been infected long ago, the trouble, though, only recently showing to any serious extent.

Your Temper and Your Cat's.

Cats are of a high strung and sensitive nature, easily influenced by their surroundings. If you wish a fine tempered, nice little home loving cat you must possess some of these attributes yourself.

You cannot expect to have a very amiable animal if you are cranky all the time. Give the animal credit for being a good imitator. If you are vile tempered and given to striking the kitten, and no fault if the cat has a like manner and strikes people and smaller animals.—Dumb Animals.

THISTLES ARE PERSISTENT

A tar macadam road near Shoeburyness, Eng., recently became blistered in a remarkable way. The cause was a mystery until finally up came broad soft thistle shoots through the stone surface of the road. Hundreds of these bold intruders have been showing defiantly through the pavement this spring, affording an interesting illustration of the power of vegetable growth.

HAVE BIGGEST FAMILY

The Dickey family, of Canaan, Me., last fall established the world's record, they assert, for a big family when there were born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickey their twenty-second child. Mr. and Mrs. Dickey live on a cross road in Canaan with fifteen of their twenty-two children. Here they have a sixty-acre farm surrounded by fence to keep the babies in safety without constant watching to see if they are going to get run over by passing teams. Nowhere else would it have been possible for a young couple unaided to bring up with their own hands such a large family and supply them with all the necessities of life. But Mr. Dickey, working on this farm and another one which he owns free and clear of debt, has been able to do this and today doesn't owe a dollar to anybody. He says he and Mrs. Dickey were put here to be an example to the world of what other families should do. Mrs. Dickey is a young looking woman of about forty-five and Mr. Dickey is a happy, contented man of fifty-three.

BILLIONS OF MATCHES USED

It has been estimated that for each minute of time the civilized nations of the world strike 3,000,000 matches. This is said to be the average for every minute of the 24 hours of the day. Fifteen hundred billion is the number for the entire year, and those persons who live under the American flag are charged with the consumption of one-half of this amount. Small and insignificant as it is, the match demands as much attention in the choice of woods involved as any other forest product. Only the choicest portions of the best trees are suitable. Sapwood and knotty or cross-grained wood will not do. Instead of being a by-product, the little match is turned out in mills where the by-products are bulky objects like doors, sash, shingles, slidings, posts and cordwood. The pines, linden, aspen, white cedar, poplar, birch and willow are the most suitable match timbers.

TEACHES A NOVEL CLASS

Isaac Jones, retired whaler, steamboat man and soldier, of Somerset, Pa., teaches what is probably the most novel Sunday school class in the country. For 20 years he has taught a class in the Somerset county jail. During that time six of his pupils, he is quoted as saying, have been hanged and one other has been convicted of murder.

Oh, Will They?

Mrs. Bacon—I see samples of human hair are being collected from all over the world by a French criminologist with a view to classifying them and framing an international standard of nomenclature.

Mr. Bacon—I suppose they'll be able to tell which is switch.

Seems Reasonable.

"Men are not logical."

"How now?"

"Well, my brother says he can't see any sense in suffragettes throwing bricks whereas the chances are that if one of us suffragettes was to hit him with a brick, he would see the justice of our cause immediately."

TWO VALUATIONS.

Brush—Somebody asked Dauber to name a figure for that painting of his. He placed it pretty high, I believe.

Canvas—Yes, and so did the art committee.

Brush—What had they to do with the price?

Canvas—Not the price, but the painting itself. They skied it.

A Rash Little Boom.

A little boom went out to play—'Twas brimming full of heated air, But when a few facts came that way it just exploded, then and there.

Down the Rhine.

"Look at this beautiful castle."

"Don't bother me. How can I read the guide book if you keep pestering me to look at rocks and castles?"

A Mistake.

"Don't tell that amateur detective that your wife has a soft, low voice."

"Great Scott! Why not?"

"Because he will begin to suspect there is a speak-easy in the house."

All That Was Left.

A large boarding house caught fire during dinner and much confusion resulted. After the worst was over the landlady, who was a philosophical soul, remarked that it was a blessing that the fire had not happened at night, as some life might have been lost.

Parisienne Are. Probably the Most Successful in This, But Many May Achieve It.

A Russian princess who has attracted much attention in Paris this winter, and who is considered one of the best-dressed women in that city, declares that nothing ages a woman's appearance so much as the old-fashioned method of pushing the flesh up above the corset.

How few women who have passed the "dangerous" age stop to think of this, yet is it not true? The settled look that comes with middle age is enhanced by a stiff-corseted figure above the waist.

Put money into a good corset, have it fitted sitting down, and in adjusting it be sure to pull it far down and gird it firmly round the hips.

Many women find as they grow older they must have their evening gowns cut high. This need not be done if care is taken to get a corset that has a low bust.

From Paris comes another hint about youthful looks. A famous dressmaker says that real lace ages women and should never be worn near the face.

The Parisienne has learned to fight age more successfully than most women because she pays heed to details that to others seem trivial. She makes a study of line, angle and color, and who will say the results are not worth the trouble?

It is every woman's duty to keep young looking. The worst way to do it is to feign youth through cosmetics or a kittenish manner!—Cleveland Leader.

HUMAN NATURE NOT SO BAD

New York Newspaper Man Observes With Pleasure the Aid Given the Blind.

If you doubt that human nature is kind, watch the ordinary passerby in his attitude toward a blind man. The office window man was riding in a Broadway open car the other day. The car was just barely moving, owing to some blockade or other, and kept about even pace with the pedestrians who crowded the pavements in their usual daily hustle.

The eye of the Office Window casually lit upon a blind man, walking alone, with that upright tilt of the head so common to the sightless. He tapped his stick incessantly before him and moved briskly until he reached the end of each block, with its hazardous curb. The car kept pace with him for seven blocks, and upon every block some one took charge of that blind man as he came to the curb, saw him safely over and said a pleasant word in parting.

One young man stayed near him for three blocks, steering him over the crossings each time. Probably the man with the tapping stick thought the friendly guide was a different man for every block. Or does his ear become so delicately attuned to voices that he fairly sees through hearing?

The Office Window man wondered if the smiles that so often light the faces of the blind come from the habit of thanking people who lend them friendly aid so many times a day?—New York Evening Mail.

Sleeping Sickness Discovery.

Reports received from the commission on Sleeping Sickness working in Rhodesia state that it has been proved beyond doubt that the tsetse fly, known as Glossina morsitans, as a carrier of the disease.

The commission was dispatched to Africa in consequence of the appearance of the disease in regions where Glossina palpalis (the species of tsetse fly, which up to that time had alone been regarded as a carrier of sleeping sickness) was non-existent. The guilt of Glossina morsitans has been proved not only under laboratory conditions, but also in nature. Certain animals can act as the host of the virus without suffering thereby.

While palpalis is to be found only in narrow limits, morsitans is met with throughout Africa in wide areas, and the methods of migration and isolation hitherto employed will be practically impossible.

Consumption From a Monkey.

A report comes from Russia that Mme. Gvosdeska, prima donna at the Imperial theater, is ill from consumption, having been infected by her pet monkey. She fondled her pet when it suffered from bronchitis. Inasmuch as the monkey is suffering from tuberculosis, the Russian doctors decided that the disease had been caught from the monkey. It is probable that consumption would last considerably longer in the woman than in the monkey, and the chances are that the poor monkey while out of sorts really caught the consumption from the prima donna, who may have been infected long ago, the trouble, though, only recently showing to any serious extent.

Your Temper and Your Cat's.

Cats are of a high strung and sensitive nature, easily influenced by their surroundings. If you wish a fine tempered, nice little home loving cat you must possess some of these attributes yourself.

You cannot expect to have a very amiable animal if you are cranky all the time. Give the animal credit for being a good imitator. If you are vile tempered and given to striking the kitten, and so fault if the cat has a like manner and strikes people and smaller animals.—Dumb Animals.

THISTLES ARE PERSISTENT

A tar macadam road near Shoshone, Eng., recently became blistered in a remarkable way. The cause was a mystery until finally up came broad soft thistle shoots through the stone surface of the road. Hundreds of these bold intruders have been showing defiantly through the pavement this spring, affording an interesting illustration of the power of vegetable growth.

HAVE BIGGEST FAMILY

The Dickey family, of Canaan, Me., last fall established the world's record, they assert, for a big family when there were born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickey their twenty-second child. Mr. and Mrs. Dickey live on a cross road in Canaan with fifteen of their twenty-two children. Here they have a sixty-acre farm surrounded by fence to keep the babies in safety without constant watching to see if they are going to get run over by passing teams. Nowhere else would it have been possible for a young couple unaided to bring up with their own hands such a large family and supply them with all the necessities of life. But Mr. Dickey, working on this farm and another one which he owns free and clear of debt, has been able to do this and today doesn't owe a dollar to anybody. He says he and Mrs. Dickey were put here to be an example to the world of what other families should do. Mrs. Dickey is a young looking woman of about forty-five and Mr. Dickey is a happy, contented man of fifty-three.

BILLIONS OF MATCHES USED

It has been estimated that for each minute of time the civilized nations of the world strike 3,000,000 matches. This is said to be the average for every minute of the 24 hours of the day. Fifteen hundred billion is the number for the entire year, and those persons who live under the American flag are charged with the consumption of one-half of this amount. Small and insignificant as it is, the match demands as much attention in the choice of woods involved as any other forest product. Only the choicest portions of the best trees are suitable. Sapwood and knotty or cross-grained wood will not do. Instead of being a by-product, the little match is turned out in mills where the by-products are bulky objects like doors, sash, shingles, sildings, posts and cordwood. The pines, linden, aspen, white cedar, poplar, birch and willow are the most suitable match timbers.

TEACHES A NOVEL CLASS

Isaac Jones, retired whaler, steamboat man and soldier, of Somerset, Pa., teaches what is probably the most novel Sunday school class in the country. For 20 years he has taught a class in the Somerset county jail. During that time six of his pupils, he is quoted as saying, have been hanged and one other has been convicted of murder.

Oh, Will They?

Mrs. Bacon—I see samples of human hair are being collected from all over the world by a French criminologist with a view to classifying them and framing an international standard of nomenclature.

Mr. Bacon—I suppose they'll be able to tell which is switch.

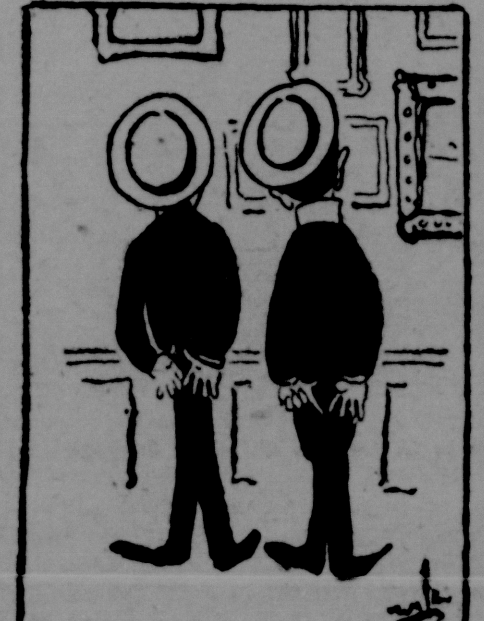

Seems Reasonable.

"Men are not logical."

"How now?"

"Well, my brother says he can't see any sense in suffragettes throwing bricks whereas the chances are that if one of us suffragettes was to hit him with a brick, he would see the justice of our cause immediately."

TWO VALUATIONS.

Brush—Somebody asked Dauber to name a figure for that painting of his. He placed it pretty high, I believe.

Canvas—Yes, and so did the art committee.

Brush—What had they to do with the price?

Canvas—Not the price, but the painting itself. They asked it.

A Rash Little Boom.

A little boom went out to play—'Twas brimming full of heated air, But when a few facts came that way It just exploded, then and there.

Down the Rhine.

"Look at this beautiful castle."

"Don't bother me. How can I read the guide book if you keep pestering me to look at rocks and castles?"

A Mistake.

"Don't tell that amateur detective that your wife has a soft, low voice."

"Great Scott! Why not?"

"Because he will begin to suspect there is a speak-easy in the house."

All That Was Left.

A large boarding house caught fire during dinner and much confusion resulted. After the worst was over the landlady, who was a philosophical soul, remarked that it was a blessing that the fire had not happened at night, as some life might have been lost.

A little later the colored boy, who heard this, mysteriously called her aside and cautiously exhibited a great bunch of dark, tangled hair. "Don't say nothin', Miss Nora," he whispered. "Dis hair is worse dan it 'pears. One o' dem ladies in de room ovah de lobby done get burnt up. I ben up dar to see, an' I found her hair."—Ladies' Home Journal.
